Will make $38,000

School head gets 3% hike

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill will receive a 3 per cent pay raise for the 1975-76 school year, setting his salary at $38,000.

One of the highest-paid school administrators in the Northwest suburbs, Gill has been with Dist. 21 for 15 years.

Associate Supt. John Barger, whose responsibilities were increased last year, is scheduled for an 11 per cent pay hike. Barger's salary will go up from $29,756 to $33,000.

THE SALARY of Marjorie Beu, assistant superintendent for instruction, will increase by 8 per cent, going from $23,643 to $25,520.

Other administrators whose salaries were approved by the school board last week include James Gochis, director of business services. Gochis will make 12 per cent more this year, with his pay going from $20,900 to $23,400.

Larry Chase, director of staff development, is scheduled for an 8 per cent increase that will raise his salary from $23,000 to $24,800. William Senne, director of operations, will earn 15 per cent over last year, moving up from $18,480 to $21,300.

PRINCIPALS of the three junior high schools in the district will earn between $19,890 and $22,440 next year.

Ronald Bierbaum, new principal of London Junior High School, Wheeling, will receive $19,890. The new head of Cooper Junior High School, Buffalo Grove, is slated to receive $21,590, and principal James Johnson, London Junior High School, Wheeling, will earn $22,440.

The salaries of school district secretaries were raised an average of 5 per cent. Custodians are to take home paychecks averaging 7 per cent more than last year, with those of maintenance workers to increase by an average of 10 per cent.

Negotiations on teacher salaries are progressing, but after six bargaining sessions, no final agreement has been reached on the 1975-76 pay schedule.

Union representatives and school board members are to meet again today for further talks.

Strathmore rezoning hearing slated tonight

A public hearing on rezoning of Strathmore Grove planned unit development by Levitt and Sons, Inc. will be conducted at a Buffalo Grove Village Board meeting at 8 p.m. today.

Levitt officials are seeking rezoning that would permit construction of 57 single family houses instead of the 225 apartment and condominium units previously approved by the village.

The reclassification is sought because single-family houses would be more economical to build at this time, Levitt representatives said.

The Buffalo Grove Plan Commission last week approved the change in plans and will recommend approval to the village board of trustees.

THE CHANGE sought by Levitt, would result in a slight drop in annual revenue for the village, said Harry Sleek, a regional engineer for Levitt. Instead of the $60,000 in annual taxes to be brought by apartments, the homes are projected to bring $45,000 a year.

The second phase of the development also would mean a 50 per cent reduction in density.

The change to single-family homes has pleased some village officials, including Village Pres. Edward A. Fabish. The loss in annual revenue from the homes could be compensated with future industrial development in Buffalo Grove, he said.

Also, a public hearing will be conducted for the annexation of a strip of property on the southeast side of Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads.

The 45-foot strip is owned by Aaron Goldin who is seeking annexation so the property could be included in a shopping center by developer William Simpson. The shopping center is to include a Kohl's Supermarket and three or four smaller shops.

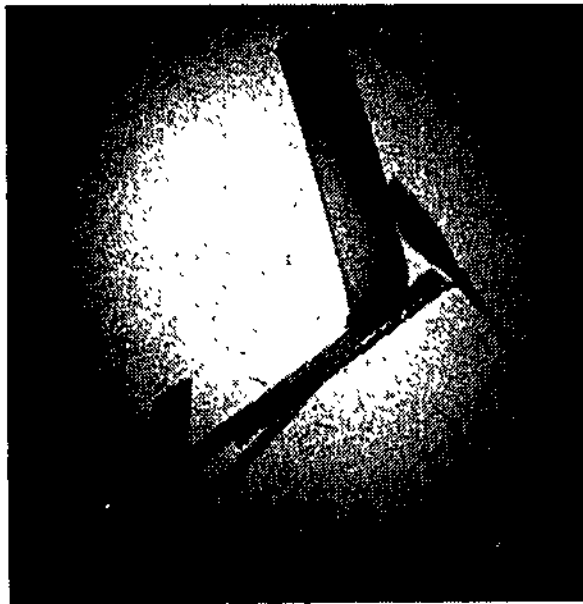

The strip is zoned for agricultural use by Cook County.

VILLAGE TRUSTEES also will consider a liquor-control ordinance that will include a provision for selling beer and wine in pizza and sandwich-type restaurants.

A workshop session will follow the meeting. Trustees will discuss an emergency preparedness plan and a performance report of village activities during the past fiscal year.

Results and residents' comments from a village town center survey will be examined.

All public hearings, the board meeting and workshop session will be conducted at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

It's just plane fun...

Let's see now, got my hat and my plane and with just a few adjustments, this old rubber-powered number is going to skim the treetops. His name is Brian Barr and he's 11 years old. A nice age to be out in the Saturday sunshine flying and retrieving his rubberband-powered airplane. Brian lives at 209 Raupp Blvd., right here in Buffalo Grove.

Wing adjustment for high flying.

Now the kids can 'Ask Andy'

Is the earth the only living planet? What gives a butterfly its colors? "Ask Andy," a new feature in The Herald, receives 10,000 questions like that each week from young newspaper readers around the country.

The Herald and brightly written column for children starts today on The Herald's new Fun Page, which also features a reduced lineup of comic strips and cartoons, plus features for young readers and adults.

"We have brought many of The Herald's lighter features together on two consecutive pages of the paper. And to conserve newsprint, while also making room for the popular Ask Andy feature, we have eliminated some of the more dated cartoon strips from our Fun Page," Editor Daniel E. Baumann said.

Six times every week, Ask Andy replies to two questions from readers between the ages of 7 and 17. The featured question earns its author a complete set of the 20-volume Merit Students Encyclopedia. The second question used each day earns a seven-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia. Both receive detailed answers.

Ask Andy is distributed by the Los Angeles Times Syndicate and is written by Ellen Lenahan Brooks with the aid of experts in many scientific fields.

Fire destroys landmark building

A landmark building at Bell Apple Orchard west of Lake Zurich was gutted early Saturday by a fire that raged for several hours. Lake Zurich Fire Chief Glen Eichmann said firefighters from five departments battled the blaze for seven hours. There was no damage estimate for the building at Ill. Rtes. 12 and 22, and Eichmann said the cause is undetermined. Five persons who were staying in the building were evacuated, but no injuries were reported. Firemen from Lake Zurich, Long Grove, Countryside, Barrington and Wauconda were summoned when the fire erupted about 3:30 a.m. Mrs. John Bell Jr., wife of the owner, said she expected most of the orchard's summer operations would be at full swing in about two weeks.

The orchard will remain open. The caramel-apple room suffered a little damage, she said. "We still have oodles and oodles of apples, an excellent crop this year," she said.

Juvenile crime rising: report

More than half the crime being committed in Arlington Heights is the work of juveniles, according to the latest Illinois Uniform Crime Report. Local police say they are not surprised by the figures, and an experienced juvenile officer says the newest crimes include assault, battery, grand theft and burglary. "It's been going this way since about 1960," a police captain said. "That means more and more young people are becoming involved and the young ones are growing older."

3 squads to answer big crowds

When Mount Prospect police cars respond to disturbances of large numbers of people, at least three squads will be sent, Mount Prospect Chief of Police Ralph Doney has ordered. Doney gave the order after his squads arrived to break up a crowd of unruly youths and two patrol cars were damaged. As youths left the area, in the 800 block of Newberry Lane, they left lawns littered with debris and run over by cars.

Civic Center dedicated

More than 300 city officials, dignitaries and residents of Des Plaines gathered Sunday to dedicate the new $1.7 million Civic Center for the city. The new edifice marks the end of a decade long project to give the city a modern administration building. Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behrel helped place in the building's cornerstone a time capsule containing documents from the city's files.

Schools chief gets 3% raise

Supt. Kenneth Gill of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 received a 3 per cent pay increase this year, making the 15-year veteran of the district one of the highest paid school administrators in the Northwest suburbs. Gill will receive $38,000 for the 1975-76 school year. Pay hikes of 11 per cent, 9 per cent, 8 per cent and 12 per cent were given to various high administration officials. The district has schools in Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights.

Walker cuts budget $140 million

Gov. Daniel Walker Sunday announced new general-funds budget cuts of about $140 million, including $51.9 million from higher education, $10.86 million from Children and Family Services and $14.9 million from Mental Health. He said those who complain about the reductions are "crybabies." The governor cut $49.7 million from the fiscal 1976 higher education operating budget. That cut leaves the state's colleges and universities with $778.9 million to meet their expenses during the year which started July 1, rather than the $828.6 million Walker requested in his March budget message.

Motorists pay highest gas prices ever

by United Press International
With the travel season at its peak, the price of regular gasoline soared above 65 cents a gallon in areas of the nation this weekend. Retailers said it was certain to reach 70 cents before summer ends.

"All this talk about a 70-cent gallon, which seemed so outlandish months ago, is not that far off," said Forrester Orr, Vermont energy director.

Some dealers predicted regular will cost $1 a gallon by the end of the year. A Los Angeles dealer said if the wholesale price reaches 70 cents a gallon by Thanksgiving, as he expects, he'll charge a dollar at the pump.

But Lou Magglio, manager of a Mobil station in Buffalo, N.Y., said motorists won't stand for it. "The American public will blow up the storage tanks first," he said.

An oil industry economist doubted the price could go to a $1. But, he said, "I cannot say verily, verily, the price can't go to a buck."

To get to $1, he said, it would require another Arab oil embargo, "wild action" on prices by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, removal of the $5.25 per barrel ceiling on "old" domestic oil and another $1 hike in the import duty and high demand.

Most dealers think the price will peak at 70 or 75 cents this year. Denzel Kennemer, who runs a Phillips station in Austin, Texas, predicted the price would jump 10 to 15 cents from the 60-cent level by September.

In Washington, meanwhile, Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., charged that some oil companies may have deliberately manipulated gasoline prices in order to get huge windfall profits.

The two Democratic senators said they would hold joint hearings beginning Wednesday to look into recent gasoline production cuts and price increases.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb will be the first witness.

The hearings will be held by Jackson's Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee and Stevenson's subcommittee on oil and gas production and distribution.

In a letter asking Zarb to appear, the senators said they were concerned about "the apparent ineffectiveness" of the FEA's regulation of the petroleum industry.

"Events of the past several weeks raise the possibility that some oil companies, apparently to maximize profits, acted deliberately to reduce gasoline supplies in order to maintain and raise prices while simultaneously building supplies of crude oil in anticipation of reaping windfall profits," the letter said.

Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., of the Senate Commerce Committee also was critical of the price increases.

"The power of the major oil companies to manipulate supplies and prices must be controlled," Magnuson said. "If FEA refuses to do its job, it is up to the Congress to find out why and take appropriate action."

Jackson said, "The American public has a right to know why gasoline prices were abruptly raised just prior to the peak driving period of July 4, and whether they can anticipate further hikes throughout the summer driving season."

Jackson and Stevenson said they would hear testimony Thursday from representatives of seven major oil companies: Amoco, Gulf, Exxon, ARCO, Shell, Standard of California and Mobil.

An Eagle Scout there in 1929 . . .

President returns to Ft. Mackinac

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (UPI) — President Ford returned to historic Ft. Mackinac on this island in northern Michigan waters Sunday for the first time since he was there as an Eagle Scout in 1929.

"I used to know the history backwards and forwards, but I've forgotten," Ford confessed as he and his wife Betty stood along the thick wall of the fort high on a bluff overlooking the Straits of Mackinac, which connect Lake Michigan with Lake Huron.

The view was spectacular. The sun shone brightly, with a few white clouds, and the panorama included the Mackinac Bridge linking Michigan's two peninsulas off to the right and an ancient, square lighthouse in the harbor below.

Ford visited the Old Commissary at the fort where he lived in a large barren room called the Subsistence Department as one of eight Eagle Scouts chosen by the governor to spend a month there as guides 46 years ago.

Earlier the Ford's, along with Michigan Gov. and Mrs. William G. Mill-ken and Sen. and Mrs. Robert P. Griffin, attended Trinity Episcopal Church, a white frame building of Michigan pine built in 1882. The Rev. Roland V. Raham, the vicar, preached on prayer.

After church, the Fords walked down the main street, stopping to buy some of the island's best-known product — fudge — before climbing onto a carriage drawn by two bay horses to ride up the steep bluff to the restored fort.

Motor vehicles are banned on the island's streets.

Later, Ford arranged to play tennis with the Millkens and William Seidman, his economic counselor from Ford's hometown of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mackinac Island is about three miles by two miles and was built in 1780 and was captured by the British in the War of 1812.

In a breakfast speech, Ford called on federal judges to safeguard traditional individual rights and keep all Americans from getting "lost in the crowd."

But he coupled the appeal with a warning that the federal courts are being asked to settle too many of the nation's controversies. He said Americans cannot rely on the courts "as the sole protectors of our individual liberties."

Ford, ending a three-day "non-political" Midwestern trip, spoke to the closing session of the annual 6th Circuit U.S. Judicial Conference.

His remarks, voiced along with his strong support for legislation to increase the number and salaries of federal judges, drew enthusiastic applause from the audience which included Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart, some state judges and lawyers.

PRESIDENT FORD leaves the meeting of the Sixth Circuit Judicial Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island, Mich., after breakfast speech at a local conference. No autos are allowed on the island roads.

Heavy fighting breaks out in Luanda, Angola

LUANDA, Angola (UPI) — Heavy fighting between rival African independence factions broke out anew in Luanda Sunday, sending over 1,000 persons fleeing into the center of the city seeking refuge from mortar, cannon, and machine gun fire.

An official of Luanda Central hospital estimated the death toll since fighting started Wednesday at "over 300, and there must be more than 1,000 wounded."

Diplomatic sources said the resumption of heavy fighting Sunday — following a lull Saturday — meant a breakdown of the truce signed three weeks ago in Nakuru, Kenya, between the rival Popular Movement of Angola and the Angola National Front.

A third party signing the truce, the National Union, a member of the three-party coalition that now co-governs the colony with Portugal to prepare it for independence, has so far stayed out of the latest round of fighting in the capital.

Hospital officials reported emergency wards overflowing with dead and wounded, who were lying on corridor floors, slumped on chairs and benches, and treated at makeshift operating tables by doctors working round-the-clock in blood-spattered rooms.

The government sent mixed units of Portuguese and African troops into the suburbs when fighting broke out with orders to shoot armed civilians on sight, but their job was difficult because the conflict was spread out in widely scattered areas.

AS A YOUTH IN 1929, President Ford spent a month raising the flag at Fort Mackinac. Here, the President posed at the base of the same flagpole with Boy Scouts in a reenactment of a picture taken when he was an Eagle Scout. The President also played in a doubles tennis match.

Israeli warplanes strike in Lebanon

by United Press International

Israeli warplanes struck into south Lebanon for the second time in a week Sunday, attacking Palestinian targets near the port of Sidon and sending billowing black clouds of smoke into the sky.

Palestinian sources in Beirut said four persons, including a woman, were killed and 20 others wounded in the attack on the Ain El Helweh camp.

Arab forces in Lebanon retaliated later in the night by firing rockets at the Israeli border town of Nahariyah at about 8 p.m., wounding two persons, Israeli sources said.

A Lebanese army spokesman said one Israeli plane was downed and seen crashing in flames into the sea. He said patrols were searching for its crew that were seen parachuting inland into the hills around Sidon, 35 miles south of Beirut.

An Israeli command spokesman said all planes returned safely from raids against an arms factory at the guerrilla camp.

The raid came as Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin convoked a marathon cabinet session to brief ministers on his talks with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger about a possible interim peace agreement with Egypt. But no decisions were reached after the five-hour session.

Cabinet Secretary Gershon Avner said the ministers authorized Israel's top-level negotiating team to continue its efforts to get clarifications of Egypt's position. The only comment after the meeting came from Foreign Minister Yigal Allon, who told reporters, "Every day is a progress."

David Kennedy faces court date in Virginia

• A July 25 court appearance has been set in Shenandoah County, Va., for David Kennedy, 20, son of the late Robert F. Kennedy, following his arrest Saturday night on a reckless driving charge. He may waive the appearance if he chooses to pay a fine. State Trooper J. R. Heitler, arresting officer, said he clocked Kennedy at 92 m.p.h. in a 55 m.p.h. zone.

• The Federal Bureau of Investigation said Sunday Richard Dean Helton, one of its 10 most wanted fugitives surrendered to police on the island of Kauai, Hawaii because he got "tired of running." Helton was wanted in connection with the robbery of a Seattle bank and the fatal shooting of an Omaha bartender.

sign from the University of California Board of Regents if she decides that would influence her daughter, Patricia, to surrender to authorities. "I'd do anything for Patty," Mrs. Hearst said in an interview after she and her husband met with Jack Scott, former sports executive who rented a house in Pennsylvania that the FBI says was used as a hideout by Miss Hearst last summer.

• President Ford will celebrate his 62nd birthday today and says he thinks the presidency has "made me more youthful." When asked how they would celebrate, First Lady Betty Ford told reporters "It's a surprise." Ford smilingly recalls that his birthday falls on "Bastille Day," but he shows no inclination to be free of the White House prison walls.

Fed's expenditures nearly triple, House report says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House subcommittee staff reported Sunday the Federal Reserve System last year spent $4,749 on Christmas decorations at its New York bank, $14,000 to transfer an employee from Miami to Atlanta and $10,074 to pay one of its former officers as a consultant.

Overall, the report said, the Fed's operating expenditures nearly tripled from $197 million to $590 million in the past 10 years, with salaries for officers rising 140 per cent.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., said it reveals "a classic case of misuse of public funds by a government agency."

The expenditures were listed in a 72-page report based on information provided by the Fed at the request of the House banking subcommittee on domestic monetary policy, which Patman chairs.

Patman, a long-time critic of the Fed, issued the report to spur support for his bill calling for an audit of the Fed's operations by the General Accounting Office, a congressional investigative agency. The Fed opposes an audit, arguing it would interfere with its independence.

The Fed does not depend on congressional appropriations for its revenues but uses interest earned by U.S. Treasury notes and bonds it holds. What is left after expenses are subtracted is returned to the Treasury.

"It is now clear that a full-scale audit of the entire Federal Reserve System will reveal millions of dollars of outright waste, inefficiency and costly management practices," Patman said.

Auto production dips to low this week

U.S. auto production will dip to the lowest point of the year this week as vacations and the rapidly increasing changeovers to 1976 model production closes 23 of the industry's 58 car and truck plants. The vast Ford Motor Co. auto and truck manufacturing complex will be virtually silent with all 23 car and truck plants and 31 manufacturing plants closed for paid vacations. Four General Motors plants will be closed and one American Motors assembly plant is closed. The only firm operating any semblance of a normal production week is Chrysler Corp.

Discrimination in Army cited

A committee of generals has found the army does not assign Jewish soldiers to Saudi Arabia, will not send Greeks to Turkey and vice versa, and has a disproportionate number of Spanish-surnamed personnel assigned to Latin America. And it also found that "looks, figure and personality are considered when female personnel are nominated for assignment to high level staff."

It recommended that these, along with other cases of discrimination against minority group members, women and even unmarried officers, stop immediately.

OAS meeting opens this week

The Organization of American States opens a two-week meeting in Costa Rica Wednesday to reform a 1947 hemispheric mutual assistance pact and find a way to end the controversial Cuban sanctions. Representatives of 21 of the 25 OAS members, including the United States, meet in the capital of San Jose to revise the treaty under which the Cuban ban was imposed on the Fidel Castro regime 11 years ago.

Americans heading back to rural areas

Since 1970 the American people have reversed their decades-long trek to the cities and have begun moving back to rural areas, according to a government population study released Sunday. "This is the first period in this century in which nonmetro areas have grown at a faster rate than metro areas," said Calvin L. Beale, the study's author. His analysis of census data showed that from 1970 to 1973 metropolitan counties grew 2.9 per cent and those containing cities of 50,000 people and up plus their neighboring commuter areas.

U.N. force on Cyprus alerted

The United Nations peace-keeping force on Cyprus has been alerted for possible trouble when rival Cypriot factions mark the anniversary of last year's pro-Greek coup and subsequent Turkish invasion of the island, a U.N. spokesman said Sunday. 10 ways to give your small business a fighting chance against inflation and other perils.

You want your business to be profitable, and so do we. To help, we've made a list of 10 essential things every small business owner needs to know about in these complicated times. Our thinking's free of charge, because we believe that helping you protect your financial future means better business for us both. Simply check the ones you'd like to hear more about and send this page, along with your name and address, to Phoenix Mutual.

1. Business valuation: If you haven't taken steps to establish a value for your business, there will come a time when the Internal Revenue Service will do it for you.

2. Accumulated earnings tax: This specialized 27.5% tax can really hurt a small business. If you don't know what it is or when it applies, you should.

3. Stock attribution rules: If you're in business with relatives, stock transactions can be complicated. A wrong move can destroy your plans.

4. Incorporation: It's surprising how many businesses that should be incorporated aren't. Incorporation could save you a lot of money.

5. Employee benefit and incentive plans: In today's marketplace, you have to compete with other companies. For employees. Without good benefit and incentive plans like pensions and profit sharing, you're not really competitive.

6. Tax shelters for you and key employees: Every-one talks about oil depictions and cattle ranches, but the more practical tax shelters are a lot closer to home.

7. Salary/wage continuation: In unsettled economic times, deferring compensation can provide current tax savings as well as protection against inflation.

8. Disability protection, including overhead expenses: If you're suddenly disabled, certain business expenses will have to continue. You need protection.

9. Stock redemption plans: At least one personal tax bill can be picked up by your business. It's worth looking into.

10. Your personal estate conservation: Sometimes you can be so busy making your small business a success, you don't have the time or the energy to do the same with your personal financial planning.

Harrison inspects grapes in his vineyard.

His dream... area's first winery

by JOANNE VAN WYE

Ed Harrison grows grapes — 600 pounds a year — and some day he would like to make his living from them.

Standing in his arbor, Harrison's weathered face breaks into a broad grin as he talks about the day he can retire and open Palatine's first winery in his backyard at 1196 S. Brockway St.

But that's still a dream for the Irish iron worker who planted his first vines 15 years ago and bottled his first grape wine in 1971.

He is content for now to spend his spare time keeping up the arbor known as the "Harrison 1/2-acre Vineyard" and bottling the legal limit of 200 gallons of wine a year. Harrison adopted the French spelling of his name because, "Who ever heard of an Irish winemaker?"

Most of his grapes are for eating, but a hybrid vine adaptable to American weather will produce its first yield for wine this year.

"The native American grapes are drinkable but I can afford to buy that kind of wine. I am trying to make what I can't afford," Harrison explains.

HARRISON not only is a purist with his grapes but also with his bottles, labels and corks. The corks have his name stamped on them. He has designed two labels and every wine he bottles can be easily identified by the color and shape of the bottle.

The wine cellar he designed and dug by hand below his house is filled with every imaginable kind of wine ranging from auslese and petit Syrah to country wines made from fruit.

But growing the grapes and making the wine is only half the fun for Harrison, who looks forward to sipping and enjoying his wines with friends. He tries to drink a glass of wine a day but his wife does not really care for the stuff.

Cranberry wine is his specialty but not necessarily his best, he says. Harrison prefers the petit Syrah but is more than willing to open eight or 10 different bottles to let his guests determine their own preference. So far he has not had a bottle of wine go bad on him but he's still puzzled how the first bottle that used the crudest of techniques ever turned out.

Stadium feasibility study to cost $50,000

A feasibility report on a professional football stadium at Arlington Park Race Track could cost the Village of Arlington Heights $50,000, said Alex Cook, vice president of Smith, Barney & Co., investment bankers.

Cook will make a presentation to the village board tonight on the services being offered by Smith, Barney as investment counselors in the negotiations and potential financing of the stadium.

"The upper limit of a feasibility study would be around $50,000," Cook said. "It could be substantially less."

A REPORT on the financing and operation of the stadium would be essential to a municipal revenue-bond issue for the stadium, he said. Revenue bonds would be paid for exclusively from the use of the stadium and would not be tax-supported.

"The Arlington Heights board of trustees is going to have to decide, really, whether it wants to go ahead with the project," Cook said.

"It ought to be very sure in its own mind that it wants to go ahead."

The feasibility report is part of that decision, he said, adding "I think it is a kind of water shed as far as the village is concerned."

Madison Square Garden Corp., owner of Arlington Park, asked the village to issue general-obligation bonds for the stadium because they carry a lower interest rate and are more easily sold than revenue bonds.

Cook said a stadium feasibility report would not even be required to sell Arlington Heights' general-obligation bonds because they are backed by the full credit and taxing power of the village.

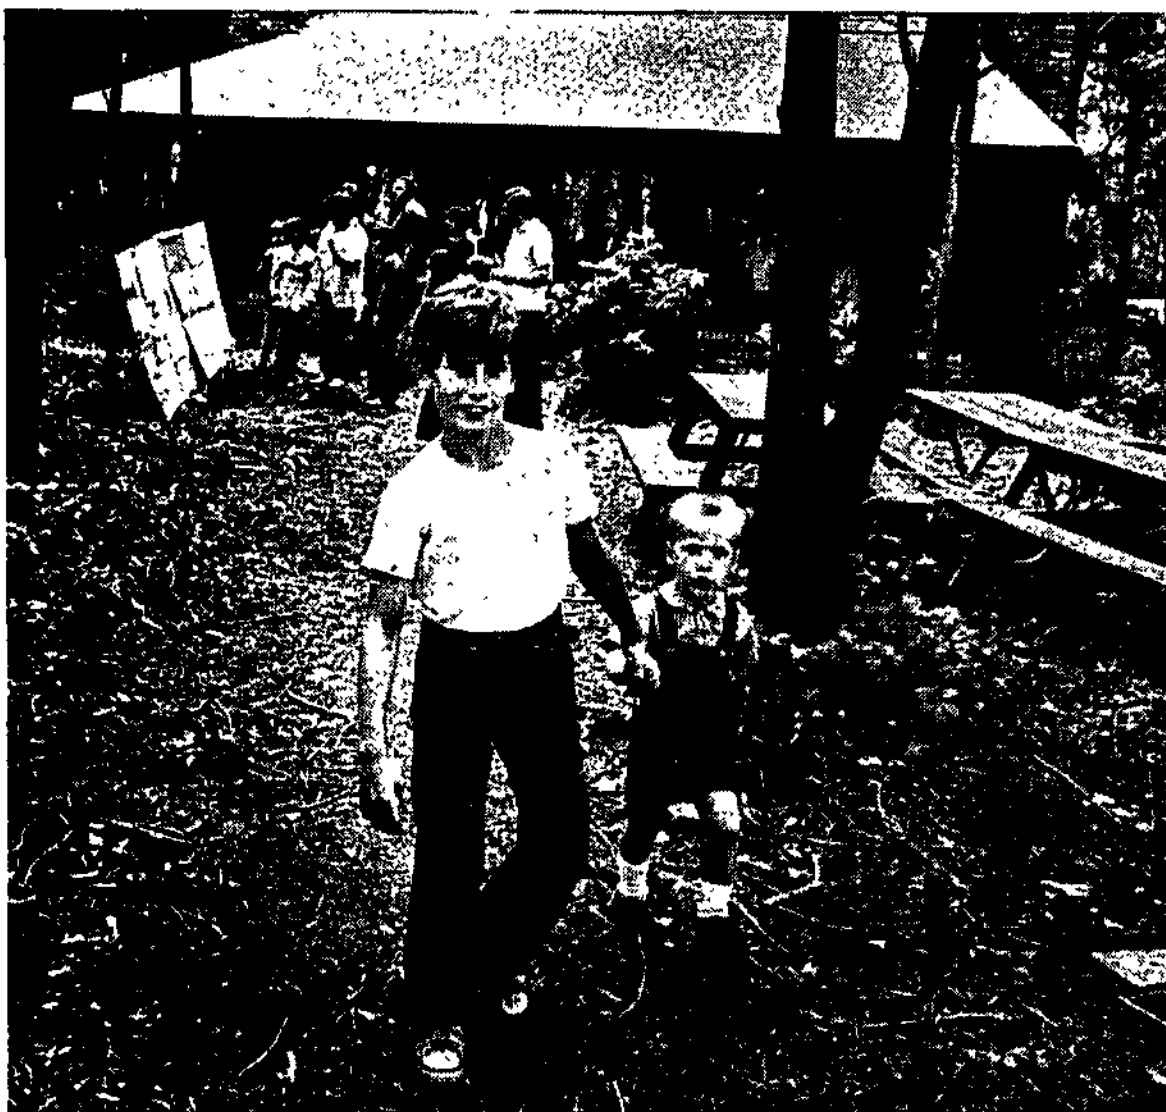

WILLIAM MOORE, Madison Square Garden's attorney, also has said that, with the lower interest rate, general-obligation bonds mean a greater potential revenue surplus for the village.

But Cook Friday discounted Moore's argument saying the fundamental decision was whether the village wanted to become involved in the financing and operation of the stadium.

"Sure there is going to be a surplus (with general-obligation bonds) because of the lower cost of the money. But that is not making any judgment about the functioning of the stadium. The interest rate is lower solely because all the risk is being taken by the citizens of Arlington Heights," he said.

If the Village of Arlington Heights' purpose is to make money, Cook said he could line up businesses from "the Brooklyn Bridge to San Francisco Bay" that would be far more profitable than a stadium.

Today's special village board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

A WALK IN THE woods was the order of the day after dedication ceremonies Sunday for the Izaak Walton League's new shelter on the Hillcrest Slough near Ill. Rte. 83 and Camp McDonald Road, Prospect Heights.

ELGIN (UPI) — Randy Peterson and Mary Campbell Peterson of Streamwood, Ill., planned a simple, lovely weekend wedding.

Before the day and their battles with county lines were over, they had gotten married three times.

"It was a simply beautiful wedding," said one guest at the first ceremony at the Smyrna Free Will Baptist Church Saturday in Ontarioville.

Beautiful yes, legal no. The couple had taken out a marriage license in Kane County. The church, it was belatedly discovered, was in DuPage County.

So they packed up their wedding gear, gathered the wedding party and went to Lord's Park on the eastern edge of Elgin.

The setting was idyllic. A quaint bridge stretched over a quiet lagoon in the tree-shaded park. Brother Bobby Thompson married the couple a second time.

A neighbor witnessed the blissful moment and called the local newspaper, the Elgin Daily Courier-News, to tell the tale. A reporter put the story together and off it went to the composing room when a copy editor noticed a slight problem.

Lord's Park is in Cook County — 200 feet from the Kane County line. So for the third time in one day, the bride and groom and their wedding party met for a ceremony — this time in the newsroom of the Courier-News, at least a mile inside Kane County.

Mary's father, who has two more single daughters had only one thing to say:

"I hope next time they elope."

Postmaster general's view

No postal strike seen, but 'slowdown' possible

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Postmaster General Benjamin Franklin Bailar said Sunday that while a postal strike is unlikely this year, it is "certainly possible" that postal workers may resort to a slowdown to reinforce their wage demands.

He also said postal rates will have to go up no matter what the outcome of "difficult negotiations" under way for a new labor contract.

"We will need new revenue," Bailar said. "I would think it's quite likely that we'll have to move for the maximum increase which is allowed us — it will be on the order of 30 per cent by the end of the year."

BUT BAILAR SAID the cost of mailing a first-class letter — now 10 cents — won't be pegged higher than 13 cents and may be "something less" depending on developments.

He was interviewed on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation."

Asked if there might be a repeat of the 1970 postal strike, Bailar replied: "It's possible... but a postal strike is illegal. It would work a gross hardship on the American people in the distribution of retirement, Social Security checks, welfare checks and various commercial transactions..."

"I think it's unlikely there will be a strike."

IF NOT A strike, might there be some other action such as a slowdown?

"Well, it's certainly possible," Bailar replied. "There are some postal employees who feel very strongly about the present negotiations and may create some disruptions. But we have a contract which prohibits a strike; we're operating under a law which prohibits a strike; and I think all postal employees are very much aware of these prohibitions."

While declining to say if the Postal Service would seek court sanctions to combat any illegal work stoppage, Bailar said it "would have to do everything possible to see that the mail is moved."

He said several "large, critical mailers," such as the Social Security Administration, have prepared contingency plans.

Bailar also said that:

• He has written assurances from CIA Director William E. Colby that agents no longer are opening mail of American citizens, though postal inspectors do conduct "mail covers" — noting information on envelopes — for investigative agencies if asked.

• The Postal Service has yanked low-cost mailing permits for two units of the American Medical Assn. and is investigating the AMA Journal to see if it still qualifies for preferential rates given public interest groups that do not lobby.

ONE HAPPY FAMILY, that's the Ed Gloppens of Elk Grove Village. Mom (Judy Gloppen, third from left) is flanked by foster daughter Denise and foster son Mike, left, and first-born Deanne, then Robert and foster daughter Chrissy on the right. Chrissy and Denise are sisters who came to the Gloppens when they were 4 and 5. Mike, now 5, came when he was 2.

Judy Gloppen

She's long on love

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Judy Gloppen is long on patience . . . and wide of smile. As mother of five, three of them foster children, she smiles even more widely if she can interest anyone else in foster care.

"I would encourage anyone with love in his or her heart to share a home with foster children," she said, then challenged in her gentle way, "How about you?"

Judy first learned of the need for foster homes when she and husband Ed, a civil engineer with Midwest Concrete Products in Franklin Park, and then infant daughter Deanne lived in Arlington Heights. She accompanied a friend to a meeting of County's Auxiliary of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society.

TURNED ON by that meeting to the plight of homeless children, Judy vowed then and there she and Ed would have a foster child some day. Today they have three — with plans to adopt one of the three, hopefully all of them.

From Arlington Heights the Gloppens moved to Elk Grove Village where Robert, now 12, was born before Judy could act on her resolution. Then another move to a larger house and the family began talking about adding a brother and a sister the same ages as Deanne, who's now 15, and Robert.

"We wanted to make it possible for two children from the same family to stay together," Judy explained. Excitedly the Gloppens started proceedings. Mrs. Gloppen contacted the Children's Home and Aid Society in Chicago, setting up an appointment with Mrs. Virginia Rutan, director of foster care services.

"TELL EVERYONE that the number to call is 944-3313," Judy interjected, eyes twinkling.

The two women chatted together that first meeting, and on the next visit, Ed went along. Then Mrs. Rutan came to see the Gloppens, talking at length with each one.

"The agency must make certain that everyone in the family will welcome foster children," Judy explained.

The Gloppens requested two long term (that's for at least two years) foster children from the same family, ones they might someday adopt. Though they wanted children the same ages as Deanne and Robert, they learned the agency tries to place youngsters in a more natural age sequence within the family structure, to offset possible rivalry.

THEN AT LAST! Chrissy, 4, and Denise, 5, joined the Elk Grove family. Now 10 and 11, the sisters are friendly, affectionate and well brought up little girls with strong religious training, according to their foster mother.

"However, if their natural mother could provide a good and loving home for them, we wouldn't stand in their way," Judy said.

Judy's frank to admit there were initial adjustments all the way around. The girls retain loving memories of their natural mother and they miss her, Judy said. At first they were insecure and needed extra attention. And, said Mrs. Gloppen, all four children had to learn to share and to respect each other's privacy.

ED AND JUDY had their adjustments to make, too. But letting their natural parental love and judgment guide them, they had plenty of help from Mrs. Beverly Thompson, caseworker and child therapist, now, says Judy, "a wonderful friend of the family."

"She's more like a miracle worker than a caseworker!" Judy confided.

Visiting the Gloppens twice a month the past five years Mrs. Thompson offers professional guidance and friendly counsel for each family member. It was her help that Robert sought when he wanted a little brother.

Tired of three sisters, Judy recalled, Robert reminded his family of their original plan to add a sister . . . and a brother . . . to the family.

WITH MRS. THOMPSON'S help, he wrote to Mrs. Rutan who was the first to meet 2-year-old Mike, who's since joined the family circle. Now 5 and ready to start school, blond, blue-eyed Michael, with the build of a future football player, is described by his foster mother as "Robert's little shadow."

The Gloppens interact like any other family. "Some days are wonderful, and some are like putting five cats in a bag!" says Judy with good humor.

A quiet and a patient person, Judy centers her activities and hobbies around her home, family and church. But recently she took a part-time job, working weekends as receptionist in the outpatient lab at Northwest Community Hospital.

"I WANTED a complete change of pace, and with Ed's help, it is working out well," she said.

She can count on his help any time, says Judy. "Any man who would spend his whole vacation building a screened-in porch for his family's comfort has to be great!"

Noses do tell

Men and women wear fragrance for a variety of reasons — to express their personalities, to lift their spirits or to capture the mood of an occasion.

The mystery of perfume begins with the actual mixing and blending of fragrances. As artists look at blank canvases and envision the outline of a painting, so do perfumers begin with an inspiration they wish to capture in perfume. Called "Noses," perfumers with keen sense of smell, can blend anywhere from 50 to 2,000 different ingredients.

They might experiment with exquisite oils like jonquil, narcissus and hyacinth . . . citrus oils such as bergamot and lemon . . . spices and herbs like clove, ginger, lavender and thyme . . . and fixatives such as musk and civet to give lasting quality to the fragrance.

THE CREATION of a perfume may take as long as 10 years, as the "Nose" tries to realize that hoped-for scent.

The highest quality fragrances in the world are produced by a process known as "enfleurage." In this procedure, the essential oils of fragrant plants are absorbed into layers of fat which line glass plates. The essential oils are then extracted from the fat through heat and alcohol. Using this time-consuming and costly process, it takes 2,000 pounds of carefully picked rose petals to make one pound of pure rose essence.

The many species of animals and plant scents competing for your attention in the fragrance jungle are almost overwhelming. But, according to Karen Hall, Walgreen's cosmetics franchise sales coordinator, there are no hard and fast rules about selecting a fragrance. The only limitation in choosing among the wide range of scents is your own nose.

"DON'T BELIEVE in the notion that certain fragrances suggest specific ages, personalities or times of day," said Ms. Hall. "Some people mistakenly believe that a light floral scent is sweet sixteenish while an Oriental scent is worn only by sultry brunettes. This is purely subjective reaction," she added.

The real question, said Ms. Hall, is whether you feel comfortable with the scent, given the circumstances in which you are wearing it.

Before trying a new fragrance let it dry on the skin before smelling it. It's only after the scent has dried and warmed to your skin that you become conscious of its depth and quality.

Also, never try on more than two or three types at a time when shopping. You may become confused by the lingering scents on the skin.

Once you have chosen a fragrance, you will want it as effective as possible.

DAB OF PERFUME at the pulse points — wrists, elbows, temple, base of throat and back of knees. Body heat develops the full bouquet as pulse points emit the most body heat.

Layering the scents with bath oils, moisturizers, powders and friction lotions also heightens the lasting power of fragrances. Always keep a purse-size spray or perfume flacon handy for touch-ups.

Women aren't the only ones dabbling on fragrance today. In 1974, men spent nearly $300 million on fragrance products such as colognes and after-shave lotions. In 1975, that figure is expected to increase by 15 per cent.

IT'S GOING TO be a highly fragrant fall. Besides all the scents on the market already, several major companies are coming out with some new ones.

Stephen Burrows scent by Max Factor, Jontue by Revlon, Nuanee by Coty, Aviance by Matchabelli, Daisy L. by Love and Madame Jovan are the new names to be introduced to the perfume counters.

Also, look for more standardized packaging after August due to an increase in crude oil prices used in glass and plastic containers.

Manufacturers will be cutting back on fancy bottle shapes in favor of the plain stock bottles.

They also report an increase in alternatives to the aerosol packaging. Pump sprays with no gas propellants are said to be safer to use and equal or less in price than aerosols. Roll-on applicators are also on the rise.

Legion auxiliary gives $500 scholarship to Roxane Hoey

Roxane Hoey

Roxane Hoey has been named the recipient of a $500 scholarship given by American Legion Auxiliary 690, Palatine.

A 1974 graduate of Palatine High School, she is studying prelaw at Northern Illinois University.

Roxane is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hoey, Palatine. She will be presented with the scholarship July 19 during the state American Legion Auxiliary convention at the Pick-Congress Hotel, Chicago.

Adventure awaits Ensign Hohman 'down on the ice'

by MONICA WILCH PERIN

Rebecca Hohman of Palatine is going south this winter. But she won't be basking in warm sunshine. Rebecca, an ensign in the U.S. Navy, is going to Antarctica.

Ensign Hohman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond P. Hohman, 169 Imperial Ct., will be participating in Operation Deep Freeze, the Navy's logistic support program that makes possible ongoing Antarctic research by the National Science Foundation. The Naval Support Force provides the necessities of life for scientists in the hostile Antarctic environment.

It is an assignment Rebecca welcomes with excitement. The 1969 graduate of Fremd High School joined the Navy last September anticipating "challenge and equal opportunities." There will surely be no shortage of the former in Antarctica, and as for equal opportunity, Rebecca will be only the fourth woman officer to go "down on the ice."

DURING HER six-month tour of duty beginning in September, Rebecca's time will be divided between the Navy's four year-round scientific stations in Antarctica, and Christchurch, New Zealand, advance headquarters for Deep Freeze.

Trained in communications and

mess management, Rebecca will supervise seven clubs, two package stores and three special service programs. She will be responsible for hiring personnel, procuring supplies and generally keeping these services running smoothly.

Rebecca's unit numbers about 1,000, including five enlisted women. Some will be assigned to McMurdo Station, the U.S.' main Antarctic base, located on Ross Island some 2,300 miles south of New Zealand. This settlement is populated by about 800 in summer, 200 in winter.

SCIENTISTS AT McMurdo and the other Antarctic stations conduct research in glaciology, geology, biology and meteorology. Although the Antarctic climate — which is the severest in the world — supports only a few lichens and mosses, the waters around Antarctica are rich in marine life and support penguins, seals and whales.

The continent also contains 95 per cent of the earth's permanent ice, in which is locked valuable scientific information. Study has already revealed that Antarctica was once a much warmer place covered with forests.

It will be the last part of winter when Rebecca arrives in Antarctica, with summer beginning Dec. 22. During winter the South Pole, which is surrounded by Antarctica, is dark day and night, and during summer it is continuously light. This effect modifies gradually northward from the pole toward the Antarctic Circle.

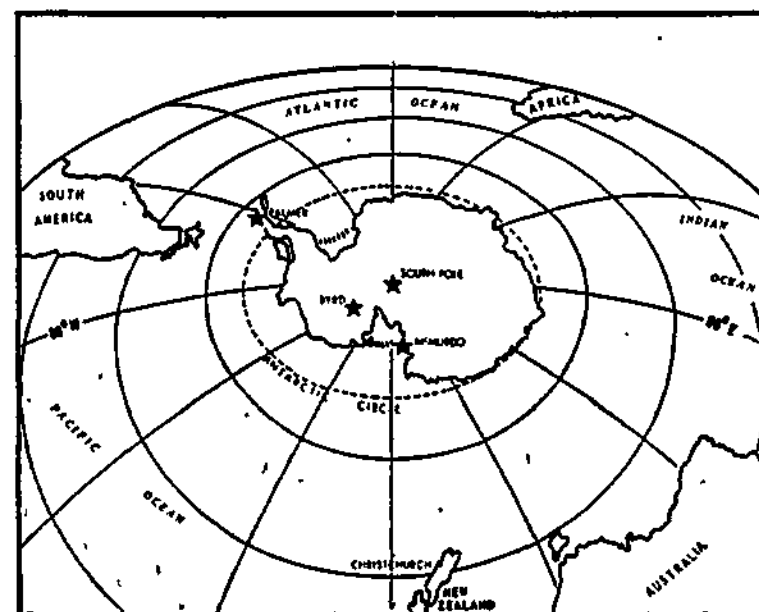

ANTARCTICA is the coldest and windiest continent in the world, with temperatures averaging 9 degrees at McMurdo Station, and the lowest temperature on record having been recorded at Russia's Vostok Station, a minus 128 degrees Fahrenheit. Winds of over 100 mph are frequent. But in summer, temperatures at McMurdo average a balmy 25 degrees, Rebecca's colleagues tell her.

Part of the special screening and training Rebecca received for this assignment, besides the physical requirements, included a survival course in such things as how to handle yourself on snow crevasses and ice shelf breaks. A particularly unique and deadly hazard of the Antarctic is the "white-out" — the visual blending of sky and ground.

REBECCA IS now at Port Hueneme, Calif., undergoing training for Antarctica. She recently returned from a week's orientation in New Zealand. Next March, before the onslaught of the Antarctic winter Rebecca and her unit will return to Port Hueneme. Then in the fall of 1976, she will have a second tour of duty in Antarctica.

After that, it will be a new assignment for the remainder of Rebecca's four-year hitch.

Before joining the Navy, Rebecca

Airmail stationery and fold-a-notes have been added to UNICEF's year-round assortment of cards, now available at the UNICEF store at 5 N. Wabash, Chicago. UNICEF items are also available at Form Co-op Furniture, Schaumburg.

Note assortments, birthday cards, invitations and mini-notes are also on sale in a variety of colorful designs and florals, all carrying greetings in five languages. Boxes of 10 sell for $2.25 with nearly half of the sale price going directly to aid children in stricken parts of the world.

UNICEF stores also carry specially designed toys, games, books and puzzles, all with an international theme. Persons seeking further information may call the UNICEF office at 372-5359 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. or Form Co-op Furniture, 894-1440.

The Chicago committee is an associate of the U.S. committee for UNICEF, which last year raised more than $4 million used by the international agency for food and medical supplies.

Wheeling club lists donations

The Wheeling Woman's Club, over the past year, has donated $650 to local philanthropies, including $100 for street Christmas decorations in Wheeling, $50 to the Wheeling Historical Society, $100 to Wheeling High School Community Scholarship Fund, $50 to the American Field Service, $25 to Omni-House, $25 to Shelter, $200 to the Wheeling High School Band and $100 to the Bicentennial Committee.

New officers, installed at the annual banquet, are Mrs. Robert Buerger, president; Mrs. John Spada, treasurer; and Mrs. Michael Barden, first vice president.

Women in Wheeling interested in joining the woman's club may call Shirley Mueller, 537-4336. The group meets the third Wednesday of each month, September through June, at 8 p.m. in the Old Church, Chamber Park.

Juniors to visit Pavilion patients

Members of Elk Grove Village Junior Women's Club are continuing their visits to Niehoff Pavilion in Elk Grove Village throughout the summer. The first Tuesday of each month the home life department of service, under chairman JoAnne Prosser, sends Juniors to visit with the patients. Home-baked goods and punch are provided along with a movie or musical entertainment.

Router-Hoyt rites unite Forest View sweethearts

Recent newlyweds, Susan Lynn Router and Richard Paul Hoyt were sweethearts at Forest View High School who became Mr. and Mrs. on June 15 in St. John Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect.

Susan's family, the Edmond Kalupus, now live in East Grand Rapids, Mich., but returned to the area for the couple's nuptials. Richard's parents, the Richard D. Hoyts, live in Mount Prospect.

The bride and groom are making their home in Arizona, where Richard is associated with Diamond's of Phoenix. He spent two years at Harper College before moving to Phoenix.

THE BRIDE'S 10-year-old sisters, Becki and Bobbi Kalupa, came down the aisle as flower girls for the 2:30 p.m. ceremony. Susan's sister, Paula Kalupa, was her maid of honor and Amy Smith, Phoenix, was the bridesmaid. All the girls wore yellow dotted swiss and carried white daisies.

Susan's bridal attire was a white cotton lace dress and a white picture hat, complemented by a bouquet of yellow daisies, roses and baby's breath.

Henry Sita, Des Plaines, served as best man and Randy Router brother of the bride, as groomsmen. The wedding reception was held at the Camelot Restaurant in Des Plaines.

Sally Erbach still in Navy but now is Mrs. Frazier

Until June 21 she was Sgt. Sally Ann Erbach, but on that date Sally Ann changed her name to Mrs. Joseph W. Frazier Jr. while still retaining her rank in the U.S. Air Force.

A '71 graduate of Arlington High School and also a graduate of Moser Secretarial School, Chicago, the bride is the daughter of former Arlington Heights residents Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Erbach, now of Naples, Fla.

Both Sally Ann, a dental assistant, and her husband, an airman first class and a dental laboratory technician, are assigned to the dental clinic at Moody Air Force Base, Ga. They are living in nearby Valdosta.

Joseph's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Frazier of Reisterstown, Md. He attended Catonsville College in Maryland before joining the Air Force.

THEIR WEDDING took place at 2 p.m. in St. Ann Church, Naples, and was followed by a reception at the Beach Club Hotel. Then the couple honeymooned for a week at Marco Beach and Miami Beach.

Sally Ann's three sisters served as her attendants, all wearing identical gowns of lace with dotted swiss bodice and volle-edged dotted swiss bolero. Each carried a bouquet of mixed flowers. Her sister, Patricia Governale of Evanston, was matron of honor in yellow. Her sister Janet, in pale blue, was maid of honor, and Judy, in apple green, was bridesmaid. Janet also played a flute solo during the ceremony while Judy read from the scriptures.

SALLY ANN'S gown had a Venetian lace bodice and chiffon skirt with chapel train. A matching lace cap trimmed with pearls and pink flowers held her elbow-length veil and she carried a bouquet of white daisies.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Frazier Jr.

stephanotis and baby's breath. Robert Kane, the bridegroom's nephew from Randallstown, Md., was best man and Sally Ann's brother-in-law, Daniel Governale, and Jeffrey L. Specht, Naples, served as ushers.

Newlyweds back in school

The former Janice Olson of Mount Prospect and her recent bridegroom, Paul Aschm of Des Moines, Iowa, are back on the Luther College campus in Decorah, Iowa, following their June 21 marriage.

Both are in their junior year, Janice majoring in art and Paul in business.

Their wedding took place at 4:30 in the afternoon at St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, with the bridegroom's uncle, the Rev. Paul Ostedal of Storm Lake, Iowa, assisting the Rev. David Quill in the double ring, candlelight ceremony.

Janice is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll A. Olson and a '73 graduate of Prospect High School. Paul's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dean Aschm of Des Moines.

FOR HER MARRIAGE Janice chose a gown of ivory sate with beading-trimmed Venise lace yoke and long sleeves and Venise lace trim at the hemline. The same lace edged her cap and cathedral veil. To complete the ensemble she carried a nosegay of white daisies, roses, miniature carnations and baby's breath.

The bride's attendants were gowned in rainbow shades with Janice's sister, Mrs. Karen Wendling of Aurora, the matron of honor, in peach and the others in green, yellow and lavender. Bridesmaids were Ann Carr, Elma, Iowa; Diane Baker, Mount Prospect; and Julie Aschm, Paul's sister. They carried matching nosegays of daisies and baby's breath.

Flower girl Lisa Burger, 4, Mount Prospect, wore a floral peach outfit with a basket of daisies to match. The bride's nephew, Eric Van Puymbrouck, 3, Des Plaines, was ring bearer.

Bill Osterbur of Ogden, Ill., was Paul's best man. Groomsmen included Don Morrill and Russ Berndt, Des Moines, and Dave Berkas, Richfield, Minn. Janice's brother, Bob, and Gary Hayworth, Des Moines, seated the 100 wedding guests.

A dinner followed in the church parlors. Among the guests was Paul's grandmother, Mrs. Edith Ostedal of Seattle, Wash.

Bride's 3 children, groom's niece take part in wedding

Marilyn Elstad Vold of Des Plaines and Donald C. Lamken of Park Ridge were married June 21 at First Baptist Church, Park Ridge, with the bride's three children, Jonathan, Daniel and Joshua Vold, and the groom's niece, Beth Koehn, serving as junior ushers.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. George Elstad of Carlton, Minn., and the Carl Lamkens of Park Ridge.

tended fall honeymoon in Germany and Austria.

Lamken is a senior transmission substation engineer for Commonwealth Edison. The new Mrs. Lamken has been director of social services at Plaza and Golf Pavilion Nursing Homes in Niles and Des Plaines.

They are living in the groom's home in Park Ridge.

The Rev. M. Richard Mitchell, pastor of First Baptist Church, and Dr. William Myers, president of the Northern Baptist Seminary in Oak Brook, officiated at the ceremony. The couple's attendants were the groom's sister, Mrs. Ruth Koehn of Des Plaines, and Ray Linko of Chicago.

MUSIC WAS provided by Mrs. Fred Hubbell at the organ, Polly Hubbell on flute, a mixed quartet composed of Varimants Murnieks, Ernest Anderson, Joyce Lucacioni and Faye Zaher, and fellow choir members of the couple at First Baptist where Marilyn is organist.

A reception for 100 guests was held at the home of the Richard Lucacioni in Northbrook, followed by a dinner for the immediate family at Como Inn, Chicago. The newlyweds, who spent a few days in the Lake Geneva area, are planning a more ex-

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

Christina DisPennett

Kay Williams

Sandy Thiry

JoAnn Hubert

Mr. and Mrs. James DisPennett of Modlinah are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Christina, to William M. Kroshl, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Kroshl of Schaumburg. A Dec. 27 wedding is planned.

The bride-to-be works at Northwest Hospital, Chicago, and is a graduate of Lake Park High School. Her fiancé, a Northwestern University graduate, is an ensign in the U.S. Navy stationed on the East Coast.

An Arlington Heights couple, Kay Williams and Bruce Frystak, are engaged and planning a Nov. 15 wedding, according to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Williams Jr.

Their daughter and her fiancé, son of the Walter Frystaks are '72 graduates of Wheeling High School. Kay attended Northern Illinois University and works for Sears at Woodfield. Bruce attended Harper College and is now with Vance Industries in Harwood Heights.

Mrs. Marie Thiry of Wheeling announces the engagement of her daughter, Sandy, to John Fawkes, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fawkes, Hampshire, Ill. An April wedding is planned.

A '71 graduate of Hersey High School, Sandy graduated from the nursing program at Harper College in May and is presently employed at Holy Family Hospital. John is employed with Schless Construction Co., Batavia, Ill.

JoAnn Hubert's engagement and approaching marriage to James Troup, son of Mrs. Joyce Canada of Benton, Ark., is announced by her parents, the Gilbert R. Huberts of Arlington Heights.

The wedding will be Sept. 6.

JoAnn, a graduate of Wheeling High School, works in Arlington Heights for Korvette's. Her fiancé is employed by H. A. Morrison, Arborist, in Wilmette.

Home remedies for ants

The major theme in the current mail run has to do with ants in the kitchen — how to get rid of them. And young mothers are asking for something not dangerous because of the small ones. Looking through the home-remedy file, some of the ant-vanquishers seem pretty far out, but remember that many of these handed-down remedies often work better than the scientific approaches.

One suggestion is to put tansy, the aromatic herb, around. Another is to plant spearmint nearby and put the leaves into the cupboards. Or try putting equal parts of sugar and active dry yeast where the ants seem most active. One correspondent painted oil of sassafras around the area; one used powdered cloves; a third sprinkled red pepper around; a fourth claimed table salt chased the ants away; a fifth said the most effective way was to blow smoke on the ants.

The most curious of all wives' tales advises drawing chalk lines across doorways and windows to banish the ants. Fascinating, what?

'Total' gas price needed

The State of Illinois has finally acted against an insignificant, but an irritating, fact of life for motorists.

We are talking about the method that all too many dealers use to deceive the motoring public about the cost of a gallon of gas.

Put another way, you spot a sign that reads "55.7 cents a gallon" for regular. Since this appears to be the lowest price you've seen in miles of motoring, you wheel your car into the station and find you're really paying several cents more, because you failed to read the "plus tax" in small print on the sign.

Your anger is understandable, because you're a victim of a small-scale consumer fraud in which the advertised "tax less" gas price on the sign doesn't match the price at the pump.

Such advertising is the pattern across Illinois. During last year's gas crisis, such deception was a minor nuisance, but as most of us shop around more and more for reasonably-priced gas, this minor nuisance is just one more motoring abuse that needs to be corrected.

To its credit, the State Dept. of Agriculture's bureau of product inspection and standards last August ordered a crackdown on this practice. This announcement prompted three gas companies to file suit against the proposed reform. Now, according to the bureau's chief, Murvil Harpster, a settlement is near.

The only problem is that the settlement is only going to increase our confusion, while easing the deception. Harpster says that both the "taxless" price and the tax will be listed on the signs; both his office and the gasoline companies are still haggling about the size of the printing for the "tax" portion on the signs.

We'll be given more information on these new signs, but it may require a pocket calculator to figure out the final price. It would have been such a simple matter to list the total price, with tax included; such simplicity seems impossible, however, for the gasoline industry.

For the beleaguered public, perhaps a half-way step is better than no progress at all. Now if we can just get those "accurate" figures on the signs (and gas pumps) down to the levels of the 1950s and 1960s...

Cooperation marks the space mission

Tomorrow afternoon's planned launching of that massive Apollo-Saturn rocket signals both the beginning of a novel space experiment and the end of a rich chapter in American aviation history.

The experiment is the first joint Soviet-American space launch. The Apollo rocket will link up with the Soviet Soyuz craft in space; all that will be missing will be five glasses of vodka to toast this exercise in space détente.

But for Americans, this is the last space flight in the Apollo-Saturn series. It's given us a sense of excitement about our ability to conquer the worlds beyond our meager planet, as well as some substantial scientific conquests.

What more fitting way to conclude a series of space shots than to make it a substantial move towards peaceful cooperation among nations in the conquest of space. In one sense, it may be a small step for two space crews, but it's a giant step for all mankind.

Tomorrow...

EDITORIAL: Our view of Gov. Walker's cuts in the state's education budget.

Apollo-Soyuz blasts off tomorrow

Mission ends a space era...

by AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — When the 22-story tall Apollo-Saturn rocket takes off its launch pad Tuesday afternoon, it will mark the end of an era for the United States space program. It is the last flight planned for the Apollo-Saturn combination that gave America undisputed space supremacy by flying men to the moon and ferrying men to the Skylab space station. Americans aren't scheduled to fly in space again for four years.

It also is the last scheduled American flight of a manned rocket and spaceship that can be used only once. There have been 30 such launchings since the United States entered the man-in-space race in 1961.

The next planned U.S. spaceflight will be the initial test flight in 1976 of the space shuttle rocket plane that will revolutionize the space business. It will take off like a rocket but return to Earth like a jetliner, landing on a three-mile long runway for refurbishing and flight again in a few weeks.

While the upcoming Apollo-Soyuz mission will be closing one era, it will be opening a new one for international spaceflight. The future is still hazy but already concrete steps are underway to make certain the upcoming Apollo-Soyuz Test Project is only the beginning of multi-nation manned space endeavors.

Two National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials met with their Russian counterparts in Moscow a few weeks ago to open talks on future Soviet-American steps in space. They will meet again in the fall to discuss specific proposals.

The 1972 agreement between President Richard M. Nixon and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin which made possible the upcoming mission indicated that more joint flights were anticipated.

The Russians have made it clear in talks with numerous space agency officials since 1972 that they would like to carry out another joint flight soon. But NASA has made it just as clear that the money is not available to fly another Apollo-Soyuz type mission.

"They'd very much like to repeat this mission," said Apollo-Soyuz program director Chester M. Lee in an interview. "But we could never sell that to Congress or the American public."

One very remote possibility, officials say, is a flight to a Russian Salyut space station similar to the one now housing two cosmonauts on a two-month mission. But that would involve the flight of another Apollo and Saturn and NASA's leaders cannot now foresee circumstances that would make that possible.

Nevertheless, the agency does have the necessary hardware available. It decided in April to hold on to $990 million worth of surplus Apollo rockets, and spaceships instead of scrapping them as earlier planned.

NASA has two massive Saturn 5 moon rockets left over from the Apollo lunar landing program, two smaller Saturn 1B rockets of the type that will launch the Apollo Tuesday, a backup joint mission docking module and a Skylab assembly that was built as a backup for 1973's orbiting lab operations.

"This flight hardware should be stored in a manner to minimize costs consistent with being able to restore it, if required, to flight condition," said a NASA headquarters memo to field centers on April 11.

Preparations for the space shuttle program, however, complicate any future plans to launch Saturns because their mobile launch platforms are being modified to fit the shuttle. One mobile launcher, however, will be retained for a Saturn until the middle of 1976.

The winged space shuttle, about the size of a DC-9 jetliner, will have many jobs. It will have an immense cargo hold and arm-like manipulators to carry satellites to and from orbit, and it will be equipped to handle manned laboratories or big astronomical telescopes.

One of the first manned missions planned for the shuttle, in 1980, will be the flight of a Spacelab now being built by the European Space Agency. This lab will fit in the shuttle and will be manned by Europeans as well as Americans.

It also is possible that the shuttle will be used in future as yet undefined Soviet-American space missions.

... 'safety no problem'

by BRUCE E. HICKS
UPI Science Writer

HOUSTON — American officials took the lead in safety planning for the upcoming joint Apollo-Soyuz space mission and are satisfied the dangers are no higher for this flight than any other.

Problems that plagued the Soviet program earlier, including the deaths of three Soyuz 11 cosmonauts in June, 1971, caused many officials at one time to question the reliability and safety of the joint international flight.

A Soviet launch abort as late as March renewed that concern, several NASA officials said. But detailed explanations of that problem and the Soyuz 11 flight satisfied the space agency that the Soviet ship is safe.

Apollo commander Thomas P. Stafford said every precaution and test has been made.

"NASA has had, and the Soviet Academy of Sciences had, a safety assessment," Stafford said in an interview. "We put all their systems on the line and they put ours."

Stafford, Donald K. "Deke" Slayton and Vance D. Brand will meet Soviet cosmonauts Alexei A. Leonov and Valeri N. Kubasov in orbit July 17, two days after the Soyuz and Apollo spacecraft launch from their respective countries.

Some Congressmen have expressed their concern about the safety of the mission and Stafford said this was ridiculous.

"Where have these guys been," Stafford said. "We've had problems, sticking hatches and everything else. Hell, we've had problems but yet we've always overcome them and met most of the mission objectives except on Apollo 13."

An oxygen system exploded in the Apollo 13 spacecraft, forcing the three astronauts aboard to forego a lunar landing and return to Earth conserving oxygen and power.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., raised a new issue last week. He said a Central Intelligence Agency specialist said Russia may not be able to adequately direct the Soyuz flight if its two-man Salyut space station is flying at the same time. NASA has been assured by the Russians, however, that there would be no interference from the Salyut mission.

The U.S. technical director for the joint flight, Glynn S. Lunney, said American engineers took the initiative in planning safety aspects of the mission and the Soviets accepted every point.

"Basically, it seems their approach to safety is very conscientious and conservative," Lunney said. "The spacecraft they fly has a number of features on it that say they paid attention to safety. They paid a good bit of attention to fire safety although Russia doesn't appear to have much of a problem to worry about."

There is less chance of fire in the Soyuz than the Apollo because the Soviet ship has an air mixture with less oxygen than the Apollo and thus would not cause a flash fire if a flame erupted. Much of the flammable material in the Apollo was removed after the Apollo 1 fire in 1967 which killed three astronauts during a ground test.

Lunney said the Soviets also added an emergency supply of oxygen in case of an air leak, made several changes in materials used in the Soyuz, and are using several different tools which have less chance to spark.

Program director Chester M. Lee said the cosmonauts are carrying a fire extinguisher for the first time because of U.S. concern. They also made inflammable coveralls to wear when visiting the Apollo.

"We agreed to furnish them material for clothing... but they made their own," Lee said. "They have developed some new nonflammable material and we've tested it and it doesn't burn. It's better than some of ours."

Lee said on the other side of the coin, the Soviets were concerned because the Apollo 15 more than three years old and its Saturn is nine years old.

"It was a legitimate question," he said. "So we have provided them with our review of the age of our spacecraft and launch vehicle and our confidence in it."

The almanac

Today is Monday, July 14, the 195th day of 1975 with 170 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Cancer.

Swedish film director Ingmar Bergman was born July 14, 1918.

On this day in history:

- In 1789, the French stormed Bastille prison in Paris, a day now commemorated as a national holiday in France.

- In 1965, American Statesman Adlai Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and former governor of Illinois, died of a heart attack in London at the age of 65.

- In 1968, eight nurses were found murdered in Chicago. Drifter Richard Speck was later convicted of the slayings and sentenced to death. The U.S. Supreme Court subsequently ruled out the death sentence and Speck remains in prison.

- In 1971, a half million workers went on strike against the Bell Telephone Company.

A thought for the day: American statesman Adlai Stevenson said, "A wise man does not try to hurry history."

B-12 cures pernicious anemia

Would you please tell me what kind of pills are taken in place of B-12 shots for pernicious anemia?

Do people with pernicious anemia ever die directly from it if they take medication faithfully? I knew of a person who lived to be 80 years old and took pills since he was 40. He never had shots.

I would appreciate it if you would enlighten me on this.

Solving pernicious anemia is one of the real triumphs of medicine in the 20th Century. Many people died from it until recent times. Marie Curie, the famed discoverer of radium died with it in 1934. Death in these cases was from overwhelming and uncontrollable anemia, causing abnormal function of many organs but ending up causing heart failure. Vitamin B-12 is essential in the normal cell regeneration process. Our body constantly regenerates itself. The splitting and doubling of cells to do this depends in part on B-12.

The anemia is prominent because we must manufacture so many new red blood cells each day. Your body manufactures about three million new red blood cells every second. Your red cells only last about 120 days. When you can't do this because of vitamin B-12 deficiency anemia is one of the earlier manifestations of the disease. All other cells that must regenerate rapidly in the body are also affected.

The lining of the small intestine is normally replaced every three days, and this replacement requires B-12. It is not surprising that digestive complaints are common in pernicious anemia.

Dogs also get pernicious anemia. A clever physician, Dr. George Whipple, from the University of Rochester, showed you could feed raw beef liver to dogs and cure them. Then two Harvard physicians, Dr. Richard Minot and William Murphy demonstrated that you could treat humans by feeding them liver. I suspect that is where the idea gained strength that you should have liver regularly. The truth is today you can get anything in liver from other sources.

By 1929 it was realized that some

United gives grants to five area youths

The Mahlinier Club of Chicago has awarded $600 scholarships to five United Air Lines employees or employee dependents.

Scholarship recipients include: John R. Cook, Rolling Meadows, a June graduate of Rolling Meadows High School. John plans to attend the University of Illinois studying mechanical engineering and business administration.

Judith A. Poluse, Mount Prospect, who plans to attend Western Illinois University as a freshman in the fall. Gregg G. Kelley, Elk Grove Village, who will enter Northern Illinois University as a freshman in the fall, studying accounting.

A music major, Nancy L. Barto, Mount Prospect, will enter the University of Kansas as a junior.

William F. Paul, Palatine, is in his sophomore year at Carthage College studying psychology.

Mobile unit gives out County IDs July 26

Residents can obtain verified photo identification cards from the Cook County mobile unit at Mount Prospect Plaza, Rand and Central roads, Mount Prospect, Saturday, July 26 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

In order to obtain the identification card, persons must be at least 18 years of age, a resident of Cook County for 30 days, and present three forms of identification. One piece of identification must verify date of birth. The fee is $3.

Mikva earns top tax-reform vote rating

The Illinois congressional delegation was rated slightly below its colleagues in the U.S. House of Representatives in a new tax-reform voting study released by a taxpayers' reform lobby group.

The study, prepared by Taxation With Representation, gave the Illinois delegation an 48 per cent rating, while the average rating for the U.S. House was 49 per cent. Local Congressmen U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, and U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, received 100 per cent and 29 per cent ratings, respectively.

A spokesman for the group said the report was the first survey ever taken to determine the interest of the U.S. House of Representatives on tax-reform issues.

The group, which was formed in 1970, describes itself as a public-interest taxpayers' lobby. The study was directed by Thomas Reese, a doctoral candidate at the University of California.

The study was based on seven votes taken in 1975.

The votes included two during debate on the tax-reduction act, one on House budget resolution, and the remaining four votes during debate on the energy bill.

Mikva was among three members of the Illinois delegation to receive the 100 per cent rating. Only five of the state's other 23 congressmen ranked lower than Crane. U.S. Rep. Robert McClory, R-13th, also received a 29 per cent rating.

The group said it based its tax-reform interest ratings by judging if the legislation taxed persons of similar incomes alike, simplified the tax system, helped influence fiscal activity towards responsible fiscal goals and provided relief to the neediest segments of the population.

The group, which said it was non-partisan, gave 30 congressmen zero per cent ratings.

The over-all Democratic average was 59 per cent while the Republican members scored an average 29 per cent in the survey.

Wheelchairs don't stop these athletes

"I make a lot of friends wherever I go," Bruce Karr says. "I've met the crown prince of Japan, Pope John and Moshe Dayan."

"In many ways I'm luckier than my contemporaries because here I am pushing 40 and I'm still able to compete on a regional, national and international level while they are pretty much through with athletics."

"And, frankly, it's out of sight."

Bruce Karr has not walked since he was 17 years old, a football player at York High School in Elmhurst. His body, he thought at the time, was rebelling against the two-practice-a-day grind that football teams go through.

Karr felt sick and weak. He was put in isolation and the disease, which turned out to be polio, was allowed to run its course.

After a period of feeling sorry for himself, Karr decided that it was only fair to himself to let his life run its course.

"Being a high school athlete," Karr recalled, "the situation seemed catastrophic at the time. I objected to everything polio had done to me."

"I had been so active in sports all my life up until that point that the forced idleness was a real disaster for me."

Karr's attitude, and the course of his life, turned around when he went to the University of Illinois. There he was exposed to the school's rehabilitation and sports programs. He started playing wheelchair basketball and, in a sense, the race was on.

"It scares me some times what my life would have been like if I hadn't gotten into wheelchair athletics," he said.

His wheelchair, and his talent at such diverse sports as snooker, table tennis (he was a national champion in 1971 and 1973), basketball (he has been coach and player for the Chicago Sidewinders for 14 years) and archery

(he just won the National Novice chair Games in Champaign) has opened up the world to Karr.

He has been to Tokyo, Rome, Jamaica and Lima, Peru, to mention just a few of the stamps on his passport, as a member of various Olympic and Pan American teams.

Now he is going to take about a month off from the wholesale furniture business he owns to represent the United States in the Stoke-Mandeville Games in Aylesbury Bucks, England, the Gold Cup basketball tournament in Brussels and from there to the wheelchair competition in Mexico City.

"I can't wait," he says under-standably.

Sam Turpin is the National Modified American Archery champion. An employee for United Air Lines, Turpin had polio when he was 22 months old.

He won't be making the trip to Europe but he will be in Mexico, competing in the shot put and archery as well as a pentathlon that includes the javelin, 100 meter swimming and wheelchair racing.

"We're just guys who like sports," Turpin said. "I hate it when people feel sorry for me. In some ways we've all got it rough. But who doesn't? In other ways we've got it made."

Don Vandello is called by Karr "the fastest, most maneuverable man in a wheelchair." Vandello, from Wheeling, has, like Karr and Turpin, been selected to represent the United States in the wheelchair games. And, also like Karr and Turpin, he needs to raise the money to get to the competition.

Vandello tried to raise some last week, along with another teammate, Randy Wix, by pushing his chair 44 miles around the McHenry area.

"We're very earnest about this thing," Vandello said. "This is the longest we've ever pushed. We don't take pledges or anything but just hope that people think enough of what we're doing to send money after the fact."

Like Bruce Karr, Sam Turpin, Randy Wix and Don Vandello are all members of the Chicago Sidewinders.

"We might have been able to take the money out of the team treasury," Karr said. "But until the season starts we just don't have any money there."

"It's bad for us that we have to go about this fund raising now with the stories coming out about some of the charities that turned out to be crooks," he continued. "We don't like to go around with our hands out but we need the money and we are a federally tax exempt charity."

Karr, who lives at 1433 Coventry Rd. in Schaumburg, said, "People who want to help us out can send me the money and make the checks out to the Chicagoland Wheelchair Sports Association."

"If they don't, we'll borrow it. We're going to go one way or the other."

Chico: 'I'm gonna play ball again'

(Second of two parts)

Dempster Street in Skokie sat deserted. The only light shone from highway lamps. In not many hours, that great lightbulb from heaven would pass above Lake Michigan's horizon.

This was clearly an hour more suited for sleeping, so even a veteran carouser like Chico Chiero eventually called it quits.

Chico flipped open the driver's side door to his shiny red Monte Carlo. His aluminum cane landed in the back seat and Chico stood straight, a big smile spread underneath his fine-line mustache.

"One thing's for sure," Chico joked while lowering himself behind the steering wheel, "they can't call me lead foot?"

That's Chico Chiero today, only eight months after Chico thought his number was up. After his right leg was amputated below the knee. And after doctors told Denise, then his wife of just two months, that they could make no guarantees about his left leg.

Mike Klein
Staff Sportswriter

"Here, let me show you my good leg," Chico remarked during dinner. And he pulled up the right pants cuff which covered his artificial limb. There are brutal scars on his left calf which Chico displays cautiously.

Chico Chiero never gave up. He didn't quit living. It's not the same as just being alive. Chico lives every minute possible; some people just exist. Even those without his problems.

That's not to suggest there weren't doubts and questions. It was five weeks before Central DuPage physicians conceded Chico might walk again. Not to even consider umpiring a girls' softball tournament, which he'll undertake later this month.

"I was worried about Denise, how she'd take it and what I would do with my life."

Chico had trouble accepting himself. "Many times he said that it would have been better if he'd died because he didn't want to face life like this," said Denise.

He progressed slowly. Chico stayed in Central DuPage until three days before Christmas. Then he returned in January for more skin grafts. There were the endless rehabilitation sessions at the Marianjoy Center in Wheaton.

His biggest asset was keeping the knee. "With the knee, you can bend," he says. "People hardly know the knee is gone. They think something else is wrong."

Chico spent six months in a wheelchair. Then he got the artificial limb. Since April, he's gone through walkers and crutches down to one little cane. In six weeks, that will also be gone.

Chico Chiero

Because he needed it, Chico unleashed courage which nobody, not even himself, knew he possessed. He found, in Denise, a reason to keep trying. "She showed me confidence that it didn't matter. She's been like that. It didn't bother her one bit."

And Chico discovered more friends than he can even remember. There were guys he'd played against. And mothers of guys he'd played against. And friends of friends of guys he'd

Wood fires 3-hitter as Sox win 5-0

Wilbur Wood fired a three-hitter and Nyls Nyman singled in two runs in the fourth to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 5-0 win over the Milwaukee Brewers Sunday at County Stadium.

The first two hits off Wood were back-to-back singles by Bob Darnin and Sixto Lezcano with two out in the fourth. But Wood retired Darrell Porter on a fly ball to end the only Brewer threat and didn't allow another hit until Hank Aaron singled in the ninth. He walked two and struck out five for his seventh win. He has lost 13.

Nyman's base loaded single in the fourth, after Bill Travers had loaded the bases on walks, scored Deron Johnson and Bill Melton with the only runs Wood needed. Later in the inning Brian Downing scored on Bill Stein's single and Nyman scored when he and Stein executed a double steal.

The Sox scored an insurance run in the sixth when Nyman doubled and Pat Kelly singled.

Rookie baffles Cubs

Rookie John Montefusco, with eighth inning relief help from Charlie Williams, combined on a six-hitter Sunday in pitching the San Francisco Giants to a 4-1 decision over the Chicago Cubs at Wrigley Field.

Montefusco, now 7-4, had a two-hitter going into the eighth when three singles gave the Cubs their only run and Williams retired two men to preserve the win.

The Giants got a run in the first off loser Geoff Zahn, now 2-7, on a double by Von Joshua, a single by Bobby Murcer and an infield out by Chris Speler. A walk to Speler, and singles by Willie Montanez and Bruce Miller gave the Giants another run in the third. Zahn was knocked out in the fifth on singles by Speler and Miller, a bunt single by Gary Thomasson and a single by Mike Sadek.

Watson wins British Open playoff

Tom Watson, using a new swing and putting to perfection despite persistent wind and rain, beat little-known Australian Jack Newton on the last green of an 18-hole playoff Sunday for the 104th British Open golf championship at Carnoustie, Scotland.

The victory earned the 1974 Western Open champ only $16,500 — small pickings compared to prizes on the American professional circuit. However, it was a morale-boosting dream of a lifetime for a player who until now had been known best for his blowups while leading the last two U.S. Opens.

"I had a goal in my life, to win a major championship, and now I've fulfilled it," the 25-year-old Stanford University graduate said. "I just thought my time had come."

Watson clinched the title by two-putting from 40 feet on the par four 18th to give him a one-under-par 71 on Carnoustie's swirling 7,065 yards of heather, thistle, rolling fairways and sunscorched rough.

At the presentation ceremonies, Watson announced that he was giving his newly-won gold medal and silver cup to his wife Linda as a belated second wedding anniversary present.

played against. That's how the list kept growing. "I could never begin to name even one tenth of them," Chico says now. "I'd look at cards when I was still groggy and I'd wonder, 'Who-the-hell is this?'"

Bobby Garippo, a real good player for the Evanston Bobcats, wrote Chico a long letter and enclosed a check. "I couldn't have spoken 15 words to him my entire lifetime. That's just one helluva guy," Chico said.

John Sorpico, who competes for Bombay Bicycle Club, ran a huge raffle entitled, "Help-A-Friend, Chico Chico." They raised money to help pay Chico's bills — some $30,000. Chico thanks them all. Plus a couple girls named Karen Enger and Sandy Malek who planned his therapy sessions at Marlanjoy in Wheaton.

Because they've rallied around him, Chico is nearly the same young man he was last November. "I've hit golf balls and softballs. I can't run yet, but I play catch," Chico said. "I've shot baskets and done whatever I could to get somewhat back in sports."

He'll umpire later this month. And Chico plans to play softball next summer.

"I'll never be where I was, not that I was outstanding, but I was above average. I hope to get my running back about 50 per cent. Let's just put it this way, you won't be able to walk and catch me," Chico said.

His friends say Chico's determination has been nothing short of awesome. One remembers his first hospital visit when Chico announced, "Hey, I'm gonna make it. I'm gonna play ball again. Somehow, I'm gonna play."

Chico talks about playing "B" league ball next summer. If he's not quite ready for that, he'll coach or umpire. "But I'll stay in softball for sure," he says confidently. And he wants to play basketball, too.

But life, and nearly death, have taught Chico their lessons. Rather than waiting, Chico and Denise now talk happily about starting a family. His eyes light up when Chico goes on about his own son playing softball.

There is a young man at Marlanjoy who lost both legs and one arm in an electrical accident. "He's making it," Chico said. "He can't walk, he can't do anything. Eight months later, I'm getting around pretty good. There's always somebody worse."

Chico understands life better than most persons. That's because he came face-to-face with its alternative. Chico has met the challenge. He's beating it back each day.

"I've still got a long way to go," he says, "but you can't realize how nice it is to get out of bed and walk without getting on your crutches."

"Just to be on two feet standing straight again is probably the biggest thrill I've ever had."

Ask Andy

Rainbow a grand magician's trick

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Ann Van Herden, age 13, of Picture Butte, Alta., Canada, for her question:

WHAT CAUSES THE SHAPE OF THE RAINBOW?

Almost all nature's wonders contain concealed lessons in mathematics. For example, the colors and shape of the shimmering rainbow are based on indisputable rules of geometry. Behind the scenes, the whole thing depends on the assorted wavelengths of light, plus angles created by a circle.

Actually the rainbow resembles a magician's trick on a grand scale. It depends on light beams, mirrors and even has a dark curtain to show off the dazzling display to its best advantage. The lights are sunbeams, the mirrors are falling raindrops, and the backdrop is a dark, weeping cloud.

When all these items are in place, an observer on the ground may behold the glimmering arch of the rainbow. The sun and the cloud must be rather low and facing each other from opposite sides of the sky. The observer turns away from the sun to face the rainbow displayed on the cloud.

However, this is only part of the show, for the interesting items go on behind the scenes. For one thing, the arch of glimmering ribbons is merely an arc, or segment, of a complete circle. The center of this circle matches the distance of the sun above the horizon. From higher up, we see more of the arc, and from a plane we may see the rainbow as a complete circle.

The whole thing happens because light is electromagnetic energy, pulsing along in different wavelengths. The falling raindrops bend and separate these wavelengths to reveal them as the rainbow colors of the spectrum. To perform this magic, the different wavelengths are bent at different angles. For example, the longer red rays are bent least and the shorter blues are bent the most.

This precise operation sorts the bands of color and arranges them in the proper order of the spectrum. It also spreads the orderly bands in a circle, centered on the position of the sun. For example, if the sun is almost at the top of the sky, then the rainbow barely peeks above the horizon.

The colored bands form definite angles with the sunbeams as they zoom across the sky. The red band forms angles of about 42 degrees, and the blue bands about 40 degrees. When a second bow appears, its larger circle forms angles of about 50 degrees.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Robert Lentz, age 10, of Williamsport, Pa., for his question:

WHO WROTE THE PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE?

Columbus discovered the New World in 1492.— and in 1892 Americans celebrated the 400th anniversary. President Benjamin Harrison wanted to give the children a chance to take part. In Boston the children recited the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag for the first time. The noble words were written by Francis Bellamy, an editor of a magazine called The Youth's Companion.

The patriotic pledge we proudly recite today is somewhat different from the original. In 1923 and 1924 slight changes were made at the Flag Conferences of the American Legion. The key words "under God" were added by Congress in 1954.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P. O. Box 680, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Win at bridge

One short of game invites it

Jim: "In the language of bids any bid of one less than game is a strong invitation to partner to go on to game. In most cases if you want to play it as a force, you won't get into trouble."

Oswald: "In standard American, South's two notrump rebid is just a strong invitation, but not quite a force. In Jacoby modern we go along with the best current practice and play it as a force to game, except if partner rebids to three of his minor suit, we can drop him there."

Jim: "South's opening bid is just about a jack above a minimum, but North's two over one response has promised at least ten points. South properly elects to rebid to two notrump."

Oswald: "Even if North does not play the two notrump as a force, he should go on to three notrump. You might as well try for something worthwhile rather than go after a part score."

Jim: "There is little to the play of the hand. South takes the first heart, tries the diamond finesse and wraps up three notrump when it succeeds."

Oswald: "If it had failed, he would have been down one, but year in and year out you win by bidding even money games."

Will make $38,000

School head gets 3% hike

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill will receive a 3 per cent pay raise for the 1975-76 school year, setting his salary at $38,000.

One of the highest-paid school administrators in the Northwest suburbs, Gill has been with Dist. 21 for 15 years.

Associate Supt. John Barger, whose responsibilities were increased last spring in an administrative reorganization, is scheduled for an 11 per cent pay hike. Barger's salary will go up from $29,758 to $33,000.

THE SALARY of Marjorie Beu, assistant superintendent for instruction, will increase by 9 per cent, going from $25,643 to $28,200.

Other administrators whose salaries were approved by the school board last week include James Gochis, director of business services. Gochis will make 12 per cent more this year, with his pay going from $20,900 to $23,400.

Larry Chase, director of staff development, is scheduled for an 8 per cent increase that will raise his salary from $23,000 to $24,800. William Senne, director of operations, will earn 15 per cent over last year, moving up from $18,480 to $21,300.

PRINCIPALS OF the three junior high schools in the district will earn between $19,890 and $22,440 next year.

Ronald Bierbaum, new principal of London Junior High School, Wheeling, will receive $19,890. The new head of Cooper Junior High School, Buffalo Grove, is slated to receive $21,590, and principal James Johnson, London Junior High School, Wheeling, will earn $22,440.

The salaries of school district secretaries were raised an average of 5 per cent. Custodians are to take home paychecks averaging 7 per cent more than last year, with those of maintenance workers to increase by an average of 10 per cent.

Negotiations on teacher salaries are progressing, but after six bargaining sessions, no final agreement has been reached on the 1975-76 pay schedule.

Union representatives and school board members are to meet again today for further talks.

Water rates, developments before trustees

New, higher water and sewer rates and changes in the densities of multi-family developments will be discussed at today's 8 p.m. meeting of the Wheeling Village Board, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

The higher water and sewer rates would affect residential and commercial customers. The basic changes would increase by 7 cents per 1,000 gallons, the rate for residential water use, with lesser increases for higher usage after the first 20,000 gallons. The residential sewer rate also will increase by 50 cents to $2.50.

The commercial water rates would be the same as the residential but the sewer charges are computed by the amount of water used and these rates would increase by 5 cents per 1,000 gallons for all but the greatest water users, which would have a 4 cent increase per 1,000 gallons.

The multi-family development ordinance would limit the number of townhouses to eight an acre and all other multi-family units, such as apartments, to 14 units per acre. Currently, all multi-family units are included under the same ordinance which permits 16 units per acre.

JOHN GULESERIAN and his 21-month-old daughter, Christy, spent Saturday morning tending their park district garden plot on Wheeling Road just south of Dundee Road, Wheeling. The use of the property was given to the park district by Commonwealth Edson. Just ask Christy, who is getting an advance taste.

Area cadet off to Portugal as part of exchange plan

Scott Eichelkraut, 17, Prospect Heights, will fly to Portugal Monday to participate in a three-week International Air Cadet Exchange Program.

Eichelkraut, 36 Wildwood Dr. South, is one of 14 Civil Air Patrol cadets in Illinois to be selected for the exchange program this year. There are some 1,100 cadets in the state.

Eichelkraut, who will be a senior at Wheeling High School next fall, has been in the Prairie View Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol for four years. He already has soloed with gliders, according to his mother, who added that Scott joined CAP because his father, a private pilot, was involved with the organization. Scott is a lieutenant colonel.

Village newsletter may go bi monthly

The Wheeling village newsletter may be issued bi-monthly rather than quarterly, if a study by the Municipal Relations Commission finds the project is feasible.

Stephen Wasserman, newly elected chairman of the commission, said an important consideration will be if there is enough money for more frequent publication.

Jaycee Jills announce craft contest winners

Winners of the Wheeling Jaycee Jills July 5 handicraft contest have been announced.

The yarn and string winners were Mary Devries, with a hand-spun wall hanging, R. Shereden and Arlette Heyden. The fabric and leather winners were Birgit Krug, Jonny Gerhold and William Bieber.

A postage-stamp arrangement by Ian Taylor won first place for paper art, with Audrey Daniel and Ann Zemeske the other winners. Debbie Clark's sculpture lady won first for clay and sculpting, with Joan Kalas and Ann Zemeske the other winners.

The artistic arrangement winners were Joyce Patrick, Audrey Daniel and R. Shereden. Junior winners were Julie Lang, Lisa Gerhold and Glen Erbes.

All first place winners were given $25 U.S. Savings Bonds. Special ribbons were given to residents of the Adolorata Villa Home For Aged Women for their entries.

There were 135 articles entered in the contest. The judges were Elaine Burke, adult librarian and craft director at the Indian Trails Library, and Beryl Shotwell, past arts and crafts chairman of the Newcomers Club.

Now the kids can 'Ask Andy'

Is the earth the only living planet? What gives a butterfly its colors? "Ask Andy," a new feature in The Herald, receives 10,000 questions like that each week from young newspaper readers around the country.

The informative and brightly written column for children starts today on The Herald's new Fun Page, which also features a reduced lineup of comic strips and cartoons, plus features for young readers and adults.

"We have brought many of The Herald's lighter features together on two consecutive pages of the paper. And to conserve newsprint, while also making room for the popular Ask Andy feature, we have eliminated some of the more dated cartoon strips from our Fun Page," Editor Daniel E. Baumann said.

Six times every week, Ask Andy replies to two questions from readers between the ages of 7 and 17. The featured question earns its author a complete set of the 20-volume Merit Students Encyclopedia. The second question used each day earns a seven-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia. Both receive detailed answers.

Ask Andy is distributed by the Los Angeles Times Syndicate and is written by Ellen Lenahan Brooks with the aid of experts in many scientific fields.

Harrison inspects grapes in his vineyard

His dream...area's first winery

by JOANNE VAN WYE
Ed Harrison grows grapes — 600 pounds a year — and some day he would like to make his living from them.

Standing in his arbor, Harrison's weathered face breaks into a broad grin as he talks about the day he can retire and open Palatine's first winery in his backyard at 1196 S. Brockway St.

But that's still a dream for the Irish iron worker who planted his first vines 15 years ago and bottled his first grape wine in 1971.

He is content for now to spend his spare time keeping up the arbor known as the "Harrison 1/2-acre Vineyard" and bottling the legal limit of 200 gallons of wine a year. Harrison adopted the French spelling of his name because, "Who ever heard of an Irish winemaker?"

Most of his grapes are for eating, but a hybrid vine adaptable to American weather will produce its first yield for wine this year.

"The native American grapes are drinkable but I can afford to buy that kind of wine. I am trying to make what I can't afford," Harrison explains.

HARRISON not only is a purist with his grapes but also with his bottles, labels and corks. The corks have his name stamped on them. He has designed two labels and every wine he bottles can be easily identified by the color and shape of the bottle.

The wine cellar he designed and dug by hand below his house is filled with every imaginable kind of wine ranging from auslese and petit Syrah to country wines made from fruit.

But growing the grapes and making the wine is only half the fun for Harrison, who looks forward to sipping and enjoying his wines with friends. He tries to drink a glass of wine a day but his wife does not really care for the stuff.

Cranberry wine is his specialty but not necessarily his best, he says. Harrison prefers the petit Syrah but is more than willing to open eight or 10 different bottles to let his guests determine their own preference. So far he has not had a bottle of wine go bad on him but he's still puzzled how the first bottle that used the crudest of techniques ever turned out.

3 police cars to deal with big crowds

Mount Prospect's police chief has ordered that at least three squad cars must respond to disturbances involving large numbers of persons after Friday night at a party disturbance.

While patrolmen were dispersing about 200 youths about 11:30 p.m., a side mirror on a squad car was broken and another police vehicle dented. The disturbance was at 800 Newberry Ln. As youths left the area, lawns were littered with debris and run over by cars, police said.

Police Chief Ralph J. Doney also ordered that one police officer be stationed at the scene of a disturbance to protect squad cars from damage. "This is another fine example of our illustrious citizens from the area," Doney said.

Spring degrees conferred

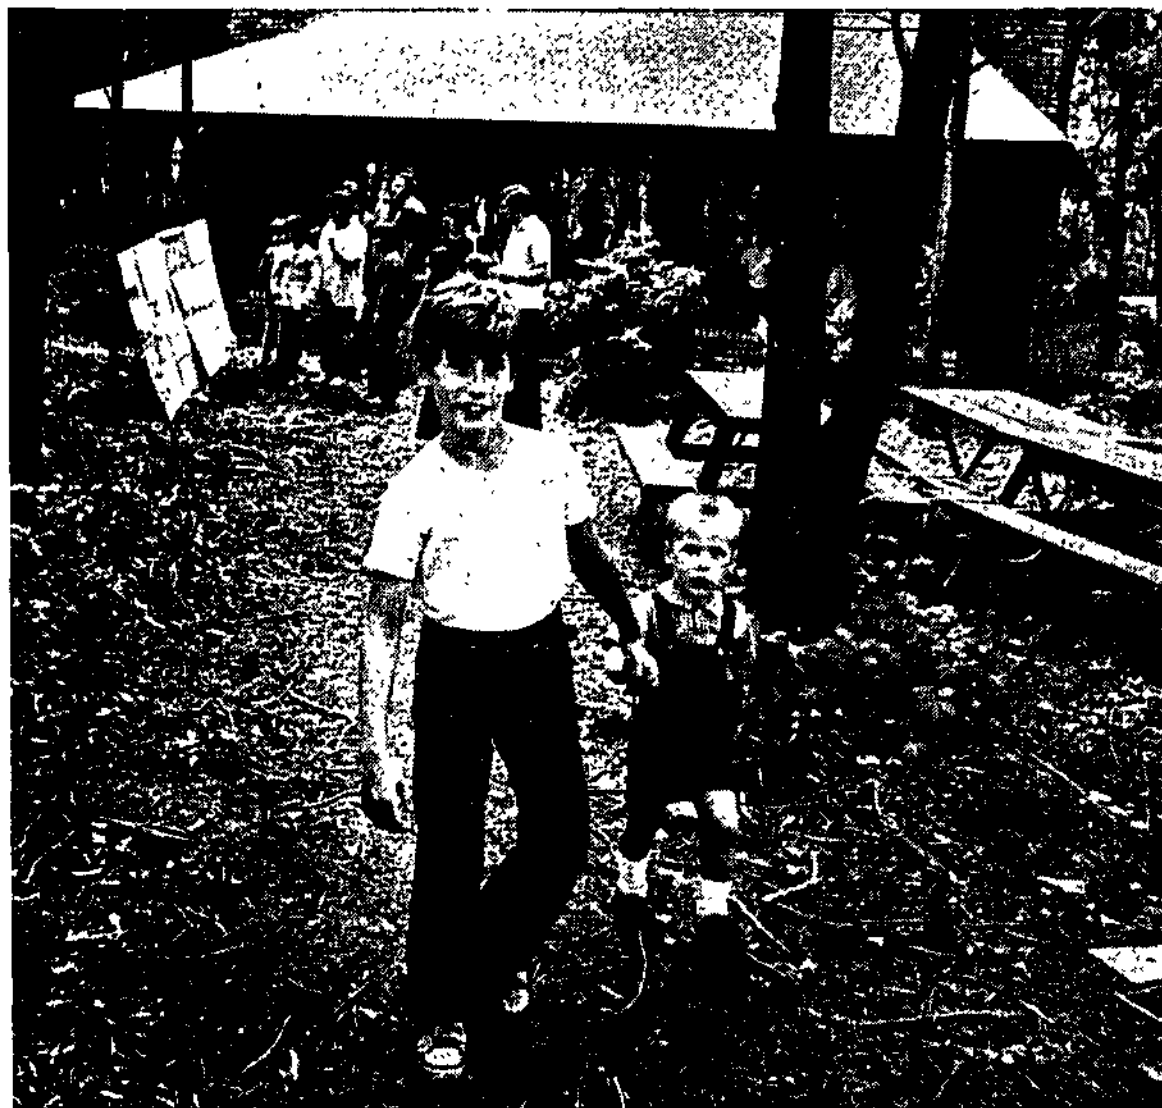

Wheeling students receiving degrees at spring commencement exercises include... Steven Andre Yellin, who graduated from Creighton University with a bachelor of science in business administration... Charlene Lemke, a home economics major, who graduated from the University of Wisconsin... Barat College conferred a bachelor of arts degree to Mrs. Patricia Witt... Cheryl Gorski was awarded a bachelor of science degree from the College of St. Teresa.

Fire touched off in vacant flat

Pranksters apparently touched off a small fire in a vacant flat in the Lamplighter Apartments, 1409 S. Wolf Rd., Thursday afternoon, Wheeling firemen said.

Firemen arriving shortly before 12:30 said pieces of plastic or rubber had been placed atop a stove which was turned on, Lt. James Johnson said.

The fire caused some smoke damage to the apartment but the flames were quickly extinguished and the building did not have to be evacuated, said Johnson. No one was injured.

A WALK IN THE woods was the order of the day after dedication ceremonies Sunday for the Izaak Walton League's new shelter on the Hillcrest Slough near Ill. Rte. 83 and Camp McDonald Road, Prospect Heights.

Behrel cites cooperation

300 see dedication of Civic Center

More than 300 city officials, residents and other dignitaries gathered Sunday to dedicate the $1.7 million Civic Center in Des Plaines.

The four-hour afternoon event included laying of a cornerstone, comments from various officials and a tour of the six-story structure for the community.

In outlining the efforts that went into the planning and construction of the building, Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said it took much cooperation from the aldermen and other officials.

Completion of the Civic Center and the police building, which still is under construction, marks a high point in a city building program that started almost a decade ago.

"We had a need 10 years ago for a new city hall, but we decided to build a public works garage and fire department headquarters first. Now we have the new city hall, and the police building will be finished in the fall. This has all been done through the patience and cooperation of a great many aldermen over the years," Behrel said.

The mayor also explained the efforts that will be taken to preserve documents placed in the cornerstone. The city recently opened a time capsule that had been placed outside the old city hall and found all its contents had been destroyed.

The documents will be photocopied on an acid-resistant paper sealed in glass and placed in a special red, white and blue vault provided by Oehler's Funeral Home.

U.S. REP ABNER J. Mikva, D-10th, presented the city with a flag that had flown over the U.S. Capitol building.

A number of former city officials, including former Mayor Kenneth G. Meyer, attended the event.

Austin Rohman acted as master of ceremonies. The Rev. R. Kenneth Wobbe, senior pastor of Christ Church, offered the invocation and the Rev. Martin Farrell, pastor of St. Mary Catholic Church gave the benediction prayer.

Old city hall still stirs controversy

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

The building sat there Sunday all alone while city officials, other dignitaries and residents crowded around the new $1.7 million Civic Center.

The old city hall building was ignored for the most part during the dedication ceremonies for the six-story "newcomer," but the 40-year-old structure still remains the center of controversy within city government.

The future of parking plans for the municipal offices, the historical society and courts hinge on a decision on the fate of the old city hall building.

Officials of the Des Plaines Historical Society and the city's Bicentennial commission are pressing hard to preserve the structure.

Society members and Richard Welch, the museum director, have gone so far as to seek a private attorney's opinion on what sections of the city code must be complied with if the society is allowed to house a museum there. They are living on borrowed time because the First Federal Savings and Loan of Des Plaines plans to use the land where the present museum stands at 777 Lee St. for a drive-in facility.

The society also is seeking its own estimates for renovation of the building. Some aldermen have said the building would take between $100,000 and $300,000 to restore.

IF THE MUSEUM question is ever resolved, the city council also must decide if it will lease space on the vacant third floor of the Civic Center to the county for new courtrooms. The courts use the old city hall building. Completion of the floor in the Civic Center would cost between $50,000 and $100,000.

City and county circuit court officials plan to meet this week to discuss the possible move.

THE FUTURE of the court in the city has been further complicated by reports of another option calling for adding a third floor to the new police building which is now under construction.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said last week that the option is not under consideration.

Overshadowing the museum and court issues is the question of how the city will get required number of parking spaces for the Civic Center and police complex.

ORIGINAL PLANS, hatched about two years ago, called for a three-story parking garage with a $700,000 price tag. The city council rejected the project as being too costly.

Since that time a wallful of maps were drawn with parking schemes. Parking lots were placed all over the area around the city hall building and it was argued that an additional 21 spaces could be found if the old city hall building was razed.

The structure got a reprieve of sorts last week when the city council voted to build a modified garage costing about $500,000. The building will not be razed for now, but some officials are still pressing for demolition of the structure.

A final decision is not in sight and, unlike some problems, the question of what to do with the old city hall building will not go away.

Mount Prospect's police chief has ordered that at least three squad cars must respond to disturbances involving large numbers of persons after two squad cars were damaged Friday night at a party disturbance.

While patrolmen were dispersing about 200 youths about 11:30 p.m., a side mirror on a squad car was broken and another police vehicle dented. The disturbance was at 809 Newberry Ln. As youths left the area, lawns were littered with debris and run over by cars, police said.

Police Chief Ralph J. Doney also ordered that one police officer be stationed at the scene of a disturbance to protect squad cars from damage.

"This is another fine example of our illustrious citizens from the area," Doney said.

SEALING THE CITY documents for posterity, Mayor Herbert H. Behrel (left) and Ald. Joseph Szabo, 1st, slide a vault containing a variety of artifacts into the cornerstone of the new six-story Civic Center Sunday. The event took place during dedication ceremonies for the $1.7 million structure.

Golf-Maine Park District

Legal aid sought in disannex fight

A homeowners group seeking to disannex their neighborhood from the Golf-Maine Park District plans to meet today with attorneys to map strategy for possible legal action.

Albert Sompolski, president of the Golf-Maine Gardens Improvement Assn., said he will meet with attorneys to discuss steps to disannex the 73 homes he represents.

The group announced last month it had established a legal fund after park officials refused to allow the disannexation.

The disputed area is south of Golf Road and east of Potter Road in Maine Township.

The residents and officials of the park district have been feuding since April when the district involuntarily annexed their homes.

THE PARK officials annexed the property in an effort to annex a new shopping center — which could be a source of additional real estate taxes — north of Golf Road and east of Potter Road.

In a protest move, the residents of the subdivision staged a write-in campaign at the April park board elections and nearly unseated several incumbent commissioners.

The group asked to be disannexed last month but a motion to allow the move failed to receive a second.

Each of the 70 homeowners in the area were asked to contribute $30 for the legal fund.

Sompolski said most of the residents do not want the park district because they would not utilize park facilities. He added the residents would have to pay between $25 and $45 per year in taxes.

Now the kids can 'Ask Andy'

Is the earth the only living planet? What gives a butterfly its colors? "Ask Andy," a new feature in The Herald, receives 10,000 questions like that each week from young newspaper readers around the country.

The informative and brightly written column for children starts today on The Herald's new Fun Page, which also features a reduced lineup of comic strips and cartoons, plus features for young readers and adults.

"We have brought many of The Herald's lighter features together on two consecutive pages of the paper. And to conserve newsprint, while also making room for the popular Ask Andy feature, we have eliminated some of the more dated cartoon strips from our Fun Page," Editor Daniel E. Baumann said.

Six times every week, Ask Andy replies to two questions from readers between the ages of 7 and 17. The featured question earns its author a complete set of the 20-volume Merit Students Encyclopedia. The second question used each day earns a seven-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia. Both receive detailed answers.

Harrison inspects grapes in his vineyard

His dream...area's first winery

by JOANNE VAN WYE

Ed Harrison grows grapes — 600 pounds a year — and some day he would like to make his living from them.

Standing in his arbor, Harrison's weathered face breaks into a broad grin as he talks about the day he can retire and open Palatine's first winery in his backyard at 1106 S. Brockway St.

But that's still a dream for the Irish iron worker who planted his first vines 15 years ago and bottled his first grape wine in 1971.

He is content for now to spend his spare time keeping up the arbor known as the "Harrison 1/2-acre Vineyard" and bottling the legal limit of 200 gallons of wine a year. Harrison adopted the French spelling of his name because, "Who ever heard of an Irish winemaker?"

Most of his grapes are for eating, but a hybrid vine adaptable to American weather will produce its first yield for wine this year.

"The native American grapes are drinkable but I can afford to buy that kind of wine. I am trying to make what I can't afford," Harrison explains.

HARRISON not only is a purist with his grapes but also with his bottles, labels and corks. The corks have his name stamped on them. He has designed two labels and every wine he bottles can be easily identified by the color and shape of the bottle.

The wine cellar he designed and dug by hand below his house is filled with every imaginable kind of wine ranging from auslese and petit Syrah to country wines made from fruit.

But growing the grapes and making the wine is only half the fun for Harrison, who looks forward to sipping and enjoying his wines with friends. He tries to drink a glass of wine a day but his wife does not really care for the stuff.

Cranberry wine is his specialty but not necessarily his best, he says. Harrison prefers the petit Syrah but is more than willing to open eight or 10 different bottles to let his guests determine their own preference. So far he has not had a bottle of wine go bad on him but he's still puzzled how the first bottle that used the crudest of techniques ever turned out.

Scouting news

Pouring rain did not discourage the boys and parents of Cub Scout Pack 46 at their annual picnic at Lake Avenue Woods West. After a potluck supper the boys had their monthly pack meeting before the lighted fireplace in the forest preserve shelter. The Webelos presented the flags.

Jeff Addante, Mike Deer, Dan Derlis, Jim Hendricks, Mike McGahan, Shane Ogan and Marc Peterson were welcomed into Webelos by leaders Paul Gulder and Bob Winterroth. Jeff Waddell received his athlete award. Cubmaster Bob Kratochvil presented a gold arrow to David Gow.

Bill Gow in Indian head dress as Akela was introduced as the new cubmaster and welcomed Ricky Mills, Mike Manus and Jeff Triebe into Pack 46.

Packs 46 and 346 will play softball at Cheyenne Park at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 30. July 31 will be the alternate date in case of rain.

Families of Pack 46 may come to camp at Lazy K Campground, Spring Grove, Aug. 15-17. Saturday, Aug. 16, will be a family fun day with swimming, hiking, picnicking and fossil hunting. There will be a potluck supper and evening campfire.

Cub Scout Pack 109 met in the multi-purpose room of the Des Plaines Police Dept. was guest speaker at the meeting. An informative slide film regarding police training and service was shown, followed by a question and answer period. Also, in commemorating Mother's Day, a dramatization of the Cub Mother's Prayer was presented by Mary Laci and son Steven.

Den 1 presented colors at the June pack meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hageson showed a film and talked about the importance of Cub Scouting. Sharon Leibach, den mother, and den chief Jim Enders entertained the audience with a skit.

Candy sales awards were presented by Mariene Wilson, fund-raising chairman. Joseph Cook, having sold the most candy, won the first-place prize; Shawn Hyken and Steven Laci, second-place; and Pat Sommerfield won the third-place prize. The den mother's award was presented to Rena Tanker, who filled in as den mother for the past few months.

May-June advancements were as follows: Robert badge, John Wilson; gold arrow, Bill Brunke, Gus Spillone and Daniel Marx; silver arrows, Gus Spillone, two; and Robert Meyer, 11.

Six Cub Scouts advanced to the Webelos rank: Joseph Cook, William Brunke, Robert Hernandez, Dennis Tanker, David Mascenic and Robert Koehler.

The following boys received their one-year pins: Steven Laci, William Brunke, Joseph Cook, John Hennessey, Jimmy Leibach, Paul Doroba, Michael Bonacka, Bruce Saframiec, Gus Spillone, Shawn Hyken, Robert Meyer, Keith Paus, Jeff Rohlicek and Stephen Sochowski.

Scout-O-Rama patches were presented to all the boys who participated in the event.

A WALK IN THE woods was the order of the day after dedication ceremonies Sunday for the Isaac Walton League's new shelter on the Hillcrest Slough near Ill. Rte. 83 and Camp McDonald Road, Prospect Heights.

Lax policy causing floods?

Village to deny MSD storm water charge

Elk Grove Village officials will answer today charges by the Metropolitan Sanitary District that the village is not working hard enough to reduce storm water infiltration into its sanitary sewers.

Elk Grove village is among a large number of municipalities involved in legal disputes over the operation of separate sewer and sanitary systems.

The MSD is charging Elk Grove and others with not rehabilitating sewers and allowing infiltration of storm water into sanitary lines, which in turn causes flooding and sewer backups.

ELK GROVE Village officials, on the other hand, say they have maintained a year-round sewer television inspection and repair program and are doing more than other communities to renovate sewers.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis said towns with the old system of one pipe that accepts combined storm water and sewage get off scot free. Others like Elk Grove Village, that have more modern, two-pipe sanitary and storm water systems, face legal imposition by the district.

Willis said the community is attempting to do everything it can to correct the situation but it is expensive.

Officials earmarked about $52,000 for sewer and transmission line maintenance in the recently approved 1975-76 budget.

MSD OFFICIALS will ask the village to set a timetable for correcting violations. These could range from repairs to manholes and lines or determination of the possible existence of illegal sewer connections.

The district, said Richard Granroth, engineer, is concerned with the village's plans for the industrial area's sewers.

He said Elk Grove Village has involved itself in corrective work, but the district still is requesting the meeting to hear the village's plans for further improvement.

Poor drainage on donated land

Parley slated on new park site

Elk Grove park officials plan to meet with Schaumburg Twp. Dist. 54 and Centex Homes Corp. representatives Tuesday to discuss the Stevenson School park site.

The site, on Volkamer Trace, west of Ill. Rte. 53, includes between four and five acres of marshy land and is part of an 8.5-acre school site donated to Dist. 54 by Centex about two years ago.

The school district has offered to turn over the site to the park district, but park commissioners are concerned about the anticipated high costs of correcting drainage problems there.

HOMEOWNERS in the area have expressed concern about the possibility the park district may reject the site. Some have said Centex salesmen persuaded them to pay $1,000 premiums for lots near the site, assuring them it would be developed.

Park, school and Centex representatives are to take a close look at the site and discuss what will be done with it.

Many parents are concerned about cleaning the site before Stevenson School opens this fall. The area is overgrown with weeds and is a breeding place for mosquitos, residents have said.

Park officials have indicated it could cost at least $40,000 to fill in and grade the sloping site that is bordered on one side by a drainage ditch.

Parks Supt. Jack Claes said because the site was transferred from Centex directly to the school district, it was not subject to the village requirements for land donations. The requirements stipulate that donated sites must be rough-graded to be acceptable.

GRAZING IN THE grass. Elk Grove Village residents were surprised to see ponies grazing outside park district offices last Monday. The ponies are used for park programs, but Supt. of Recreation Richard Ludovissy said they serve another purpose — an "inflation lawn-mowing service."

Charges material poor

Homeowner obtains plans

An Elk Grove Village resident who contends his home, built by Centex Homes Corp., is constructed of inferior materials, obtained building plans from the village building department Friday.

John Glass, 1310 Aldrin Tr., earlier accused village officials of refusing to show him proof of inspections of his house.

At a meeting last week, arranged by Gov. Daniel Walker's Consumer Advocates Office to hear residents' complaints against homebuilders, Glass gained the support of a Palatine resident who vowed to join him on a march to Elk Grove Village Hall.

The two men, accompanied by two other residents, picked up the records Friday.

BOB CALLAHAN, building department bureau supervisor, said Glass did not ask for inspection proof, only the blueprint plans of construction.

Those were made available and are being reprinted so he may retain a copy, Callahan said.

Village officials maintain they never denied Glass access to the public records.

The group also requested copies of the building code. "When the men were told they had to pay a $6 reprinting charge for the code manual, they decided to review it in the office instead," a clerk in the department said.

Glass was unavailable for comment. Earlier in the week he said he was attempting to obtain proof that his home never passed inspections, a fact he alleges was admitted by an inspector recently and then denied.

GLASS, WHO has owned the home for 2 1/2 years, has had repeated ceiling repairs and garage door replacements. He said the builder has put him on notice that future complaints no longer will be honored.

"They told me they've spent too much on my house already," said Glass.

Village officials say they have helped Glass obtain repairs to his home and admitted he had some problems.

FIFTEEN YEARS later, Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy looks over the model of the police station under construction on Schaumburg Road just east of Schaumburg High School. Conroy, who became chief in 1960, has worked out of many offices.

Chief looks forward to it

Police building rises... slowly

by STIRLING MORITA

Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy eagerly watches the progress on the new police station every time he drives past the 13-acre site on Schaumburg Road.

Out of the bumpy ground just east of Schaumburg High School, Conroy's dream is slowly rising. The foundation has been set, and sewer work completed long ago.

The police chief said he hopes the department can move into the facility long before his 17th anniversary in 1977. Plans for the $2.5 million station call for 28,000 square feet of office, jail cell, courtroom and basement parking space.

AFTER ALL, it has been 15 years without a modern police facility for Conroy. He took the post in 1960 and has had offices in almost every conceivable type of building.

First, there was the one-story building where he had to share toilet facilities with a western-style clothing store, and his one room was often used for village board meetings and court proceedings.

Police headquarters were later moved to a single-car garage behind what was then the village hall at 100 S. Springinguth Rd.

Then the department moved to the Great Hall, a refurbished barn. Conroy often jokes that his office was once in the former milking-stall area.

THE PATROL division still occupies the first level of the barn while court is held upstairs. The police administration and the detective bureau moved to the nearby village hall, 217 S. Civic Dr., when village officials moved to the new civic center.

The station will accommodate the village for at least 10 years, Conroy has said.

Police investigate stolen auto report

Schaumburg police are investigating the theft of a luxury auto and a home burglary reported during the weekend.

Jeffery Mills, Caseyville, told police early Sunday his 1974 Mark IV Lincoln Continental, valued at $13,000, was stolen from 1722 Poplar Pl.

Miko Danese, 1200 Allison Ln., reported Sunday that 20 silver dollars and a carbine were taken in a burglary at his home. Police said entry was gained by prying open a patio door.

Pupils 'positive' about school: survey

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Students in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 generally have a positive attitude towards school, their teachers, and the district, according to a survey of fourth through eighth graders in the district.

Dist. 54 released the results last week. About 230 students participated in the survey taken in April by the district's department of testing and research.

The survey concluded:

- Students on all grade levels know what is expected of them and believe they are doing well in school.

- About 94 per cent of the students feel they have a good relationship with their teachers.

- Students in lower grades have a more positive attitude about the curriculum and instruction than older students. But students in general have a positive attitude about the district and their schools.

- Most students like subjects offered and believe they are learning.

Joseph Cech, Dist. 54 director of testing and research and developer of the survey, said seeking student opinions "is somewhat unique for an elementary school. High schools and colleges do this but the idea of asking students what they like about school and what they don't like is a very forward-moving effort on this level."

Cech said one student per classroom in each school was selected at random to participate in the survey. Students anonymously completed the questionnaire.

Forty-five statements of opinion were included, with students responding "yes," "no," or "sometimes." Statements included "My teacher thinks I'm OK," "The school rules are fair," "I enjoy my social studies class," (Continued on Page 5) and "My teacher can see my side of a problem."

Survey responses show pupils' attitudes 'positive'

The survey covered students' attitudes toward subject areas — mathematics, reading, music, physical education, science, social studies and art — and teachers, school rules, learning centers and themselves.

CECH SAID ONE significant trend is that students in lower grades are more positive about the curriculum than students in upper grades.

"That can be read several different ways," Cech said. "More mature students have a more critical and analytical point of view than younger students. They are not as willing to accept things as when they were younger. Also, younger students are more under the influence of their parents and parents say, 'School is good, school is great.' Older children are more under the influence of their peer group, which is not as positive about school."

Cech said few children responded negatively to questions on teacher relationships. He said 3 per cent answered "no" to "My teacher thinks I'm OK"; 5 per cent answered "no" to "My teacher understands me"; 7 per cent answered "no" to "My teacher has a sense of humor"; and 10 per cent answered "no" to "My teacher can see my side of a problem."

Cech said when students were asked if they know what is expected of them at school, only 1 per cent answered "no." When asked if they were doing well in school, 100 per cent answered "yes," or "sometimes."

CECH SAID although the sampling of students was small, "If we were to give this to all the students in the district the percentages wouldn't vary more than 1 per cent."

The information is being distributed to district teachers and principals and is being analyzed by a group of teachers which is expected to suggest changes that can make the district more effective.

"If teachers, principals and school people can find this type of information useful, I will suggest we do this periodically," Cech said.

At spring commencement exercises degrees were awarded to the following Hoffman Estates students. Catherine Grotelueschen received a master of science in biology from Marquette University. Craig Knapp graduated from Knox College. Augustana College awarded bachelor of arts degrees to Christine E. Louri and Virginia A. Umbach. Wanda Schwelgert graduated from St. Olaf College.

SOME 40 homeowners at Schaumburg's Dunbar Lakes townhouse development helped celebrate the recent opening of their new Bath and Racquet Club by establishing individual garden plots on an acre of land provided by Dunbar Corp. Residents selected their plots and staked their claims with homemade garden signs which later were judged for creativity. The builder also provided tomato and green pepper plants for the gardeners.

NOISE POLLUTION was a problem for Firefighter Ed Johann, operating a diesel pumper for the Rolling Meadows Fire Dept. The diesel engine drowned out orders from the fire command post, so Johann now gets most instructions via earphones. An occasional hand sign helps firemen too.

Elk Grove to deny MSD charges on storm water

Elk Grove Village officials will answer today charges by the Metropolitan Sanitary District that the village is not working hard enough to reduce storm water infiltration into its sanitary sewers.

Elk Grove village is among a large number of municipalities involved in legal disputes over the operation of separate sewer and sanitary systems.

The MSD is charging Elk Grove and others with not rehabilitating sewers and allowing infiltration of storm water into sanitary lines, which in turn causes flooding and sewer backups.

ELK GROVE Village officials, on the other hand, say they have maintained a year-round sewer television inspection and repair program and are doing more than other communities to renovate sewers.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis said towns with the old system of one pipe that accepts combined storm water and sewage get off scot free. Others like Elk Grove Village, that have more modern, two-pipe sanitary and storm water systems, face legal imposition by the district.

Willis said the community is attempting to do everything it can to correct the situation but it is expensive.

Officials earmarked about $52,000 for sewer and transmission line maintenance in the recently approved 1975-76 budget.

MSD OFFICIALS will ask the village to set a timetable for correcting violations. These could range from repairs to manholes and lines or determination of the possible existence of illegal sewer connections.

The district, said Richard Granroth, engineer, is concerned with the village's plans for the industrial area's sewers.

He said Elk Grove Village has involved itself in corrective work, but the district still is requesting the meeting to hear the village's plans for further improvement.

Adds manpower at little cost

Volunteer firemen to boost city force?

The City of Rolling Meadows may be able to add to its rolls the names of several more trained firefighters without having to spend more money to do it.

A group of men have offered to train as volunteer firemen, said Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty. The men, including several students at Harper College, would be paid the same nominal fee given to every volunteer firefighter when responding to an alarm. But Fogarty says the advantage to the city will be a greater pool of firefighters available during daytime hours. Traditionally, volunteer firemen are away from their hometowns during the day.

Fogarty has asked the city council's police and fire commission to recommend adding the men to the fire department force.

Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd, committee chairman, said he will discuss the proposal with Mayor Roland J. Meyer.

Ahrens also is refining a proposed ordinance to improve safety at public gatherings. The ordinance had been prepared for council action, but Ahrens said it is too vague for adequate enforcement. As originally written, the law would require sponsors of large civic functions to arrange for the services of one or more firemen, depending on the number of persons expected. The firefighters would restrict admittance to the event to the legal seating capacity of the meeting room, theater, assembly hall or other type facility in which it is being held.

The firemen also would be required to maintain clear aisles and access to all exits.

Several of the aldermen joined fire officials in voicing concern after they attended functions at local schools in which crowds vastly exceeded recommended maximums. Ahrens has said he worried about bleachers being strong enough to hold the number of persons crowded onto them, and about evacuation in case of an emergency.

Fogarty told the committee several stores in Rolling Meadows are cooperating with smoking controls ordered by the fire department, but others have not enforced signs prohibiting smoking. The department will continue to work to ensure all merchants observe the orders, he said.

The committee authorized Fogarty to seek bids for a new fire department pumper, although it is unlikely the city will place an order before it receives an evaluation of department efficiency and future needs, Ahrens said. The study proposal will be reviewed by the council July 22, and reports would be due in November. Delivery will take up to 18 months, Fogarty said. Payment will come out of a budget for 1976-77 or later.

Members of the fire department reported they rate a new Meet and Greet program as highly successful. Under the program, the Fire Prevention Bureau obtains the names and addresses of new city residents from water hookup records and visits each home. Firemen give the residents literature and explain fire, ambulance and paramedic services the city provides.

The committee also directed Deputy City Mgr. Charles Green to research a 10-cent per mile fare hike, requested by Arlington City Cab Co.

Stadium feasibility study to cost $50,000

A feasibility report on a professional football stadium at Arlington Park Race Track could cost the Village of Arlington Heights $50,000, said Alex Cook, vice president of Smith, Barney & Co., investment bankers.

Cook will make a presentation to the village board tonight on the services being offered by Smith, Barney as investment counselors in the negotiations and potential financing of the stadium.

"The upper limit of a feasibility study would be around $50,000," Cook said. "It could be substantially less."

A REPORT on the financing and operation of the stadium would be essential to a municipal revenue-bond issue for the stadium, he said. Revenue bonds would be paid for exclusively from the use of the stadium and would not be tax-supported.

"The Arlington Heights board of trustees is going to have to decide, really, whether it wants to go ahead with the project," Cook said.

"It ought to be very sure in its own mind that it wants to go ahead."

The feasibility report is part of that decision, he said, adding "I think it is a kind of water shed as far as the village is concerned."

LAST MONDAY night, Cook appeared before the village board and reported that tax-supported general-obligation bonds would be an unwise way of paying for the stadium. Revenue bonds are "the only basis on which we (Smith, Barney) are proceeding," he said.

Madison Square Garden Corp., owner of Arlington Park, asked the village to issue general-obligation bonds for the stadium because they carry a lower interest rate and are more easily sold than revenue bonds.

Cook said a stadium feasibility report would not even be required to sell Arlington Heights' general-obligation bonds because they are backed by the full credit and taxing power of the village.

WILLIAM MOORE, Madison Square Garden's attorney, also has said that, with the lower interest rate, general-obligation bonds mean a greater potential revenue surplus for the village.

But Cook Friday discounted Moore's argument saying the fundamental decision was whether the village wanted to become involved in the financing and operation of the stadium.

"Sure there is going to be a surplus (with general-obligation bonds) because of the lower cost of the money. But that is not making any judgment about the functioning of the stadium. The interest rate is lower solely because all the risk is being taken by the citizens of Arlington Heights," he said.

If the Village of Arlington Heights' purpose is to make money, Cook said he could line up businesses from "the Brooklyn Bridge to San Francisco Bay" that would be far more profitable than a stadium.

Today's special village board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

3 police cars to deal with big crowds

Mount Prospect's police chief has ordered that at least three squad cars must respond to disturbances involving large numbers of persons after two squad cars were damaged Friday night at a party disturbance.

While patrolmen were dispersing about 200 youths about 11:30 p.m., a side mirror on a squad car was broken and another police vehicle dented. The disturbance was at 809 Newberry Ln. As youths left the area, lawns were littered with debris and run over by cars, police said.

Police Chief Ralph J. Doney also ordered that one police officer be stationed at the scene of a disturbance to protect squad cars from damage. "This is another fine example of our illustrious citizens from the area," Doney said.

Now the kids can 'Ask Andy'

Is the earth the only living planet?

What gives a butterfly its colors?

"Ask Andy," a new feature in The Herald, receives 10,000 questions like that each week from young newspaper readers around the country.

The informative and brightly written column for children starts today on The Herald's new Fun Page, which also features a reduced lineup of comic strips and cartoons, plus features for young readers and adults.

"We have brought many of The Herald's lighter features together on two consecutive pages of the paper. And to conserve newsprint, while also making room for the popular Ask Andy feature, we have eliminated some of the more dated cartoon strips from our Fun Page," Editor Daniel E. Baumann said.

Six times every week, Ask Andy replies to two questions from readers between the ages of 7 and 17. The featured question earns its author a complete set of the 20-volume Merit Students Encyclopedia. The second question used each day earns a seven-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia. Both receive detailed answers.

Ask Andy is distributed by the Los Angeles Times Syndicate and is written by Ellen Lenahan Brooks with the aid of experts in many scientific fields.

Harrison inspects grapes in his vineyard

His dream...area's first winery

by JOANNE VAN WYE
Ed Harrison grows grapes — 600 pounds a year — and some day he would like to make his living from them.
Standing in his arbor, Harrison's weathered face breaks into a broad grin as he talks about the day he can retire and open Palatine's first winery in his backyard at 1196 S. Brockway St.
But that's still a dream for the Irish iron worker who planted his first vines 15 years ago and bottled his first grape wine in 1971.

He is content for now to spend his spare time keeping up the arbor known as the "Harrison's 1/2-acre Vineyard" and bottling the legal limit of 200 gallons of wine a year. Harrison adopted the French spelling of his name because, "Who ever heard of an Irish winemaker?"

Most of his grapes are for eating, but a hybrid vine adaptable to American weather will produce its first yield for wine this year.

"The native American grapes are drinkable but I can afford to buy that kind of wine. I am trying to make what I can't afford," Harrison explains.

HARRISON not only is a purist with his grapes but also with his bottles, labels and corks. The corks have his name stamped on them. He has designed two labels and every wine he bottles can be easily identified by the color and shape of the bottle.

The wine cellar he designed and dug by hand below his house is filled with every imaginable kind of wine ranging from auslese and petit Syrah to country wines made from fruit.

But growing the grapes and making the wine is only half the fun for Harrison, who looks forward to sipping and enjoying his wines with friends. He tries to drink a glass of wine a day but his wife does not really care for the stuff.

Cranberry wine is his specialty but not necessarily his best, he says. Harrison prefers the petit Syrah but is more than willing to open eight or 10 different bottles to let his guests determine their own preference. So far he has not had a bottle of wine go bad on him but he's still puzzled how the first bottle that used the crudest of techniques ever turned out.

By traffic study

Street woes pinpointed

A village-wide traffic study, funded by the state, will help pinpoint and possibly solve traffic problems that Palatine residents say are plaguing their streets.

The $17,000 study is under way and will be completed by the fall. Barton-Aschmann and Associates, an Evanston consulting firm, has been hired by the village to conduct radar speed surveys, traffic counts and other tests to locate traffic problems on Palatine streets.

Theodore Becker, chairman of the Palatine Citizens Council, said the study "is greatly needed because of the number of complaints we've received from residents" on vehicles speeding down side streets and the lack of stop signs at busy intersections.

THE CITIZENS council asked the village board to conduct a village-wide traffic study last year after receiving numerous requests from residents to have the side street speed limits lowered from 30 to 25 miles an hour, Becker said.

The council has reviewed action forms completed by village residents who have identified some of the village intersections and streets that appear to have traffic problems, he said.

Residents most frequently mentioned Illinois Avenue, between Quentin and Plum Grove roads, as having traffic hazards. They suggested that traffic signals replace the stop signs at both intersections.

"We are ready to turn over these suggestions to the village so that they can check out these places as part of the study," Becker said.

MICHAEL CALLAS, former president of the Hunting Ridge Homeowners Assn., said "there is no question that a study of traffic problems on Illinois Avenue and all of Palatine's streets is necessary."

Callas said that Hunting Ridge residents, who live northwest of the street, are "well aware of the traffic problems because they use Illinois Avenue as a through street."

Residents have suggested that a traffic signal be placed at Illinois Avenue and Quentin Road to control the traffic from William Fremd High School at the southwest corner of the intersection, he said.

"People come speeding up the hill going west on Quentin Road, making it difficult and dangerous for people in our subdivision to turn onto Quentin," Callas said.

"Palatine is growing very quickly. The study has to take into account the new areas that are being developed as well as the areas that have recently been constructed," Callas said.

KENNETH HUECKSTAEDT, a resident of the Winston Park subdivision, said he and his neighbors have talked to the citizens council, police department and village administration about the speeding "that plagues our side streets."

Hueckstaedt said drivers travel the curves on Williams Drive, which passes in front of his house, at 40 miles per hour and that they often land on his front lawn.

"Garbage bags sitting on the curbs are ripped up by passing cars. There was even an injury out here on the corner about four weeks ago. No one listens to our complaints. It seems like they don't do anything about this kind of thing until some gets killed," Hueckstaedt said.

CHILDREN are often "just missed" by cars that travel past the Churchill Elementary School, 120 Babcock Dr., he said.

"Places like that need stop signs. We need to have the speed limit lowered around here and we need to have the police patrolling our side streets more carefully for speeders," he said.

"When people around here have to keep their children out of the front yard because they are afraid they'll be hit by passing cars, then you know the situation is bad," he said.

Backstretch youngsters compete in a game

Fun wagon brings summer play to race track, Salt Creek parks

It's formal name is the Mobile Recreation Unit but youngsters in the Salt Creek Park District call it the "Fun Wagon."

The small van is loaded with recreation equipment ranging from baseballs and kickballs to trampolines and table games. It visits Salt Creek's three parks and the backstretch area of Arlington Park Race Track once a week for a few hours of supervised recreation.

Bill Kleck, summer recreation supervisor, said the park district is "trying to provide a little better service to the kids, free of charge."

For residents of the race track backstretch area, the Fun Wagon is the only form of recreation. Kleck said race track officials "have been real good about publicizing the program and giving us a place to go with the unit."

Activities provided by the Fun Wagon include golf, archery, camping, trampoline, tumbling, arts and crafts, nature trips, baseball, kickball and volleyball. The youngsters are also invited to participate in special event days such as a Dinosaur Egg Hunt and Barbecue Day.

Parks' water carnival still on to July 19

The Palatine Park District will continue sponsoring its water carnival of special events through July 19.

A free teen-age pool party and rock concert will be staged today at Birchwood Park, 435 W. Illinois Ave., at 8:30 p.m. The gymnasium in the Birchwood sports complex also will be open for volleyball and other games.

There will be a swim-a-thon for all ages at the Birchwood pool from 8:30 a.m. to noon Saturday.

Next week's water carnival events will take place nightly at about 7:30 p.m. at the Community Park swimming pool, 282 E. Palatine Rd.

Free events include water volleyball, bobbing for apples and ice cubes, penny dives and a diving team demonstration. Karate demonstrations and dance club performances also will be held on the deck of the pool throughout the week.

Water relays for school children will be held at the Community Park pools at 2:45 p.m. weekdays this week.

The week of special events will end July 19 with Snoopy's All-Star Dog Contest at 11 a.m. at Community Park.

Residents can register their dogs for various competitive categories, which include best groomed, most obedient and best costume.

Dogs should be registered by noon July 18 at the park district administration center, 282 E. Palatine Rd.

KAREN KOLLER was among the many bookworms who sifted through piles of books, magazines and albums on the front lawn of the Palatine Library, 149 N. Brockway St. The annual summer sale was sponsored by Friends of the Librry which uses the proceeds to purchase equipment and materials for the library.

'72 park referendum projects almost finished

Several neighborhood parks and a bicycle trail, all that remain of Palatine Park District's 1972 referendum package will be completed next summer.

Fred Hall, park district director, said that "three years is not an unusually long time for a park district to complete all of the things proposed in a referendum."

Hall said the park district completed 90 per cent of the park and golf course development that was proposed in a 1965 referendum by 1968.

THE DISTRICT'S $1.4 million 1972 referendum included Locust Park, Stark Drive and Rohlwing Road, and Sycamore Park, Carpenter and Clark drives, which will be leveled and planted with grass this fall. Playground equipment also will be installed in Sycamore Park later this year, Hall said.

The referendum included a 4.7-mile village bicycle trail which will be completed by next June. The development of the Old Madrid Apartments, Hicks Road at Northwest Highway, and several other commercial developments that run adjacent to the trail, delayed earlier completion of the bike path, Hall said.

The development of the two parks was postponed to coincide with the construction of new homes in the area or with other similar contracts, he said.

"MY INTENT before the referendum, also, was to develop these parks in phases so that I would be able to keep tabs on the contracts for each of the projects under construction," Hall said.

Hall said the park district will spend about $20,000 more than the $1.4 million approved by voters in the general obligation bond issue because of the increased cost of materials and labor over three years.

The additional funds needed, which amount to about one per cent of the referendum's total amount, will be budgeted by the park district as capital improvements and paid for with tax revenues, he said.

"We have always been very concerned about building some fat into our estimates for park projects, knowing that inflation will hit us. The trap that some park districts have fallen into is that they promise the world in their referendum and then don't have enough money in their bond issue to cover it," Hall said.

THE 1972 referendum also included six other neighborhood parks, a maintenance garage, renovation of the older swimming pool at Community Park, lighting for four tennis courts at the Palatine Hills Golf Course and the construction of the Birchwood Park swimming pool and recreation building. All these projects were completed as planned, last year, Hall said.

A multi-purpose floor for the Birchwood Park gymnasium, a 10-foot addition to the building and additional outdoor lighting were worked into the construction plans after the referendum and were later deleted because of the lack of funds, he said.

Cites level of services

Can't urge budget cuts, Eppley says

by LYNN ASINOF

Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley notified the village board in a letter this weekend that he cannot recommend any budget cuts to cover recent employee pay hikes.

"In good conscience I cannot recommend further changes if the present level of service to citizens is to be maintained," Eppley said, noting he already pared more than $2 million from the original budget requests.

The village board at a heated meeting last month, directed Eppley to outline possible cuts of some $371,000 to meet the cost of raises. At the same meeting, the board approved 8 per cent raises for village police.

DURING THAT meeting, Mayor Robert D. Telchert attacked the majority of board members for throwing policy decision onto the manager by asking him to recommend cuts. He said this was unfair to Eppley.

"The board can vote quite properly to reduce or eliminate previously approved programs or services and the personnel that operate them," Eppley said in his letter. "You gentlemen set the policy and priorities. It's my job to carry them out."

Eppley said, however, he would be willing to outline his suggestions for increasing revenues to find money to cover the raises.

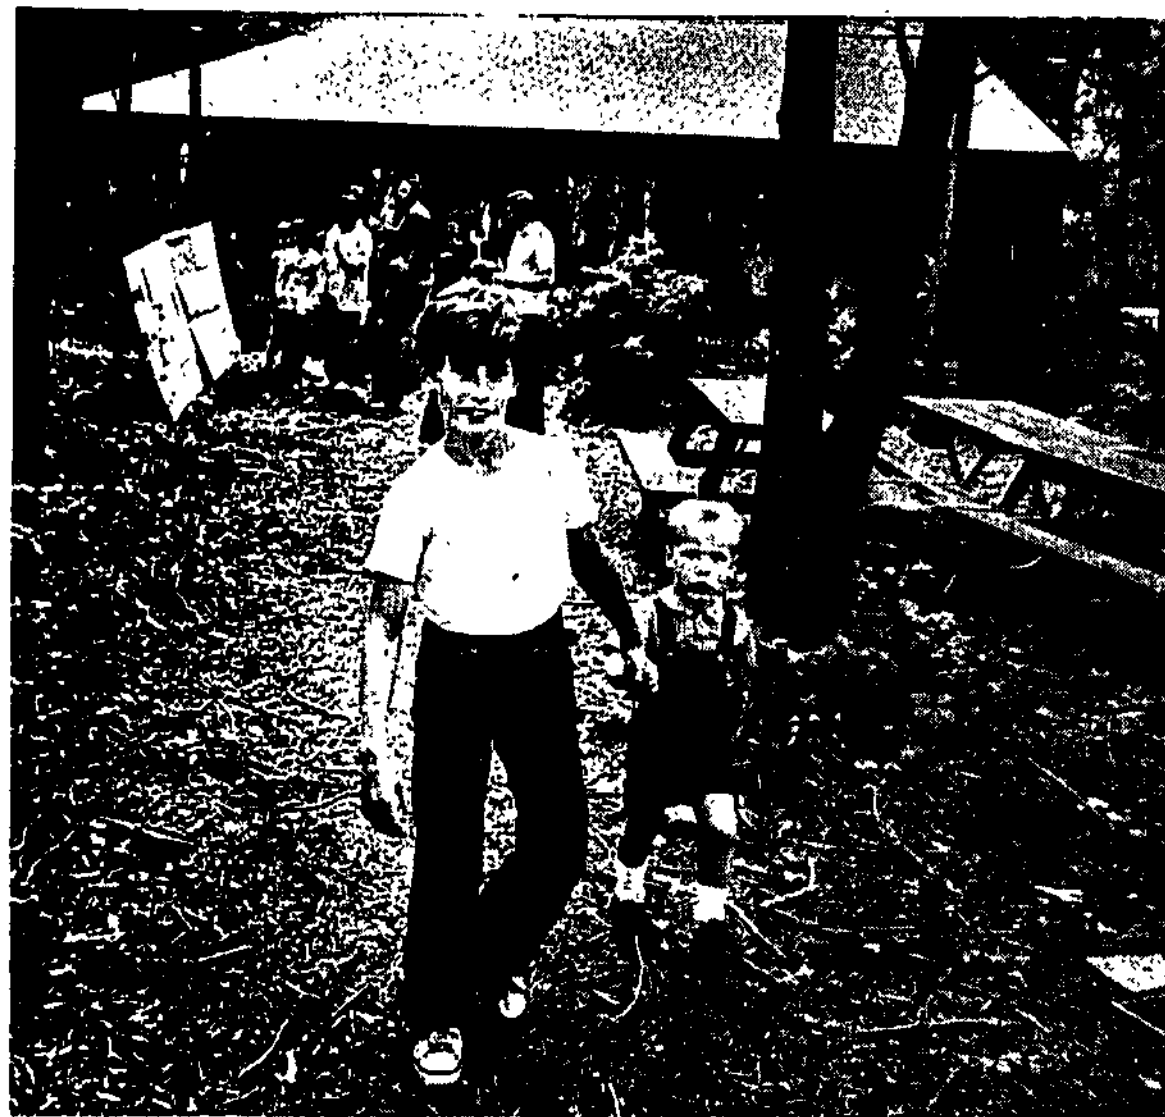

TRUSTEES Richard N. Hendricks and Leo Floros have called for budget cuts to cover at least part of the raises. Hendricks has indicated he did not support the 8 and 9 per cent raises granted village employees, while Floros has called for increased productivity with fewer personnel in light of the generous raises.

As part of his letter, Eppley sent the board a copy of all cuts made before the budget was approved this spring and a reprint of his original budget message. The cuts included the elimination of sidewalk repair, parkway tree planting, consultants for downtown redevelopment and a reduction in tree trimming.

In addition, no new personnel are to be hired and no vehicles are to be replaced, including public works and police vehicles.

At least three trustees and the mayor have indicated they are not in favor of cutting back further on either personnel or services. Trustees Theodore J. Wattenberg, Michael H. Minton and E.F. Richardson said they are looking towards other methods of covering the pay raises.

Spending a Sunday in the woods

TWO YOUNGSTERS walk into the woods Sunday after the dedication of the Isaac Walton League's nature shelter in Prospect Heights. After the brief ceremonies, chapter president Dick Schuld works at the fireplace in the new shelter. The shelter is on Hillcrest Slough east of Ill. Rte. 83 and about two blocks north of Camp MacDonald Road.

Spirited fight expected on trailer parking issue

A crowd of residents is expected to voice opinions tonight both in favor and against a proposed ordinance that would regulate the parking of recreational vehicles in Mount Prospect.

Trustee Michael H. Minton, head of the board's judiciary committee which is studying the ordinance, said he has received strong reactions from residents on both sides of the controversy. More than 500 residents have signed petitions which call for creation of such an ordinance, and Minton said those opposed to the ordinance are also circulating petitions.

MINTON SAID he has canceled other business scheduled for tonight's committee meeting because of the controversy created by the recreational vehicle ordinance.

The ordinance was proposed last month by Robert Ingebrigtsen, 620 S. George St., who said he was tired of looking out his living room window at his neighbor's trailer. He asked that his neighbor be prohibited from parking recreational vehicles in the front of driveways in residential areas.

Similar ordinances have been passed in other towns, including Arlington Heights and Wheeling, and have created controversy within the communities.

Since the ordinance was proposed, Minton said he received numerous phone calls, letters and personal visits from people opposing and favoring of the law. He said the matter will be aired at tonight's meeting in the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

3 police cars to deal with big crowds

Mount Prospect's police chief has ordered that at least three squad cars must respond to disturbances involving large numbers of persons after two squad cars were damaged Friday night at a party disturbance.

While patrolmen were dispersing about 200 youths about 11:30 p.m., a side mirror on a squad car was broken and another police vehicle dented. The disturbance was at 809 Newberry Ln. As youths left the area, lawns were littered with debris and run over by cars, police said.

Police Chief Ralph J. Doney also ordered that one police officer be stationed at the scene of a disturbance to protect squad cars from damage. "This is another fine example of our illustrious citizens from the area," Doney said.

Now the kids can 'Ask Andy'

Is the earth the only living planet? What gives a butterfly its colors?

"Ask Andy," a new feature in The Herald, receives 10,000 questions like that each week from young newspaper readers around the country.

The informative and brightly written column for children starts today on The Herald's new Fun Page, which also features a reduced lineup of comic strips and cartoons, plus features for young readers and adults.

"We have brought many of The Herald's lighter features together on two consecutive pages of the paper. And to conserve newsprint, while also making room for the popular Ask Andy feature, we have eliminated some of the more dated cartoon strips from our Fun Page," Editor Daniel E. Baumann said.

Six times every week, Ask Andy replies to two questions from readers between the ages of 7 and 17. The featured question earns its author a complete set of the 20-volume Merit Students Encyclopedia. The second question used each day earns a seven-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia. Both receive detailed answers.

Ask Andy is distributed by the Los Angeles Times Syndicate and is written by Ellen Lenahan Brooks with the aid of experts in many scientific fields.

Harrison inspects grapes in his vineyard

His dream... area's first winery

by JOANNE VAN WYE

Ed Harrison grows grapes — 600 pounds a year — and some day he would like to make his living from them.

Standing in his arbor, Harrison's weathered face breaks into a broad grin as he talks about the day he can retire and open Palatine's first winery in his backyard at 1196 S. Brockway St.

But that's still a dream for the Irish iron worker who planted his first vines 15 years ago and bottled his first grape wine in 1971.

He is content for now to spend his spare time keeping up the arbor known as the "Harrison 1/2-acre Vineyard" and bottling the legal limit of 200 gallons of wine a year. Harrison adopted the French spelling of his name because, "Who ever heard of an Irish winemaker?"

Most of his grapes are for eating, but a hybrid vine adaptable to American weather will produce its first yield for wine this year.

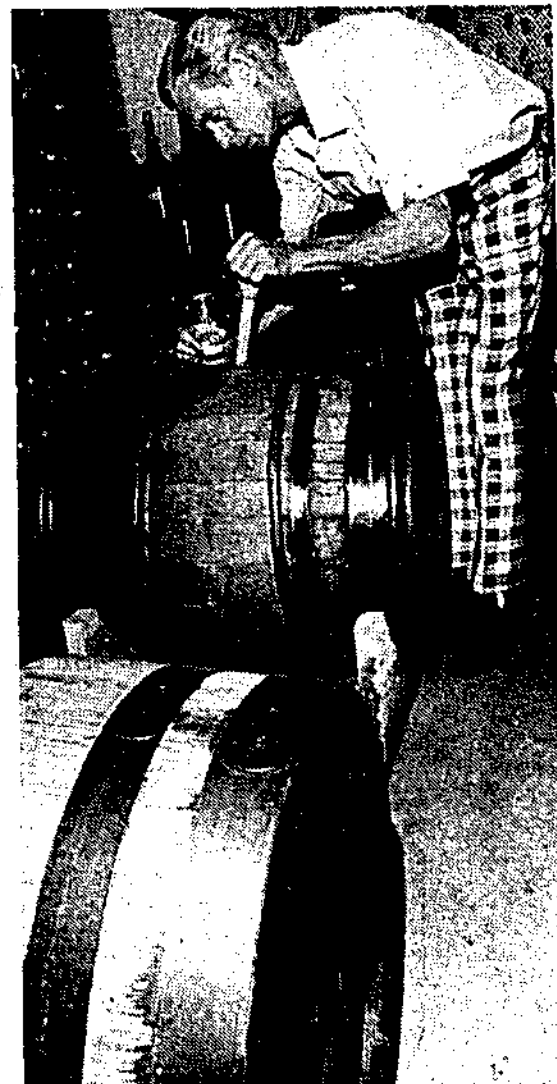

"The native American grapes are drinkable but I can afford to buy that kind of wine. I am trying to make what I can't afford," Harrison explains.

HARRISON not only is a purist with his grapes but also with his bottles, labels and corks. The corks have his name stamped on them. He has designed two labels and every wine he bottles can be easily identified by the color and shape of the bottle.

The wine cellar he designed and dug by hand below his house is filled with every imaginable kind of wine ranging from auster and petit Syrah to country wines made from fruit.

But growing the grapes and making the wine is only half the fun for Harrison, who looks forward to sipping and enjoying his wines with friends. He tries to drink a glass of wine a day but his wife does not really care for the stuff.

Cranberry wine is his specialty but not necessarily his best, he says. Harrison prefers the petit Syrah but is more than willing to open eight or 10 different bottles to let his guests determine their own preference. So far he has not had a bottle of wine go bad on him but he's still puzzled how the first bottle that used the crudest of techniques ever turned out.

She's 3rd gallon blood donor

Emily Heck, 916 S. School St., became the third "gallon" blood donor to the Mount Prospect Community Sureblood Program, thanks to the donation of her eighth pint earlier this month.

There are now a large number of "half-gallon" donors: Hubert A. Adams, Herbert H. Aspen, Arthur Braband, Thomas H. Bychowski, Edward Dell, Clifford L. Emmerling, Stewart Gordon, C. Warren Hamilton, Paul H. Heck, James M. Holm, Lawrence G. Hilyard, Lynn M. Istwan, Mary Lou Johannek, Richard E. Mastrotti.

Also, Douglas J. McAleer, Clyde J. McKelvie, William R. McGuire, Reuben A. Michaelis, Betty and Charles W. Molloy Jr., Errol F. Richardson, Joan E. Ruane, Jayne B. Shult, Patricia Smith, Julia M. Tabbott, James Threadgill, Dolores and Raymond Ulrich, Herbert J. Van Driel and Marvin D. Wineinger.

BECAUSE THE supply of blood is low during the summer, Holy Family Hospital is accepting blood donations Saturday mornings. Residents who find that time convenient may call for an appointment, 297-1800, ext. 1900. The donations will be credited to the Mount Prospect Community Sureblood Program.

Norma Murauskis continues to work as a volunteer directing the local blood program. Anyone who can assist her with telephoning or recordkeeping may call her, 439-9727.

RANDY KINER and Donna Fey received "A" ratings for their judging skills performed at the recent 4-H Judging Contest at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.

Randy, 15, of 408 Prospect Manor, is a member of the local Hoedowners 4-H Club and did horticulture judging at the contest. He attends Prospect High School.

Donna, 15, of 200 Lee St., is a member of the T.N. 4-H Club and her specialty is poultry judging. She attends Maine North High School.

Randy placed second in the state at the judging event and will have an opportunity to try out for the state team which will represent Illinois in regional and national competition later this year.

River Trails parks show 17.4% expenditure drop

Preliminary and incomplete figures for the River Trails Park District 1975-76 budget show a 17.4 per cent drop in planned expenditures.

The figures, which do not include the bond and interest account, show expenditures of $746,150, compared with the $903,875 last year for the same funds. The bonds and interest account last year was an additional $176,752.50.

The tentative budget figures were supplied by Park Director Marvin Weiss and will be discussed at the 8 p.m. Thursday meeting of the park board.

THE TENTATIVE figures for expenditures show decreases in all major fund areas with the exception of the recreation fund. The $195,900 to be spent in the recreation fund is an increase of $6,000.

The largest decrease is listed for the corporate fund. Its $529,750 total is 25 per cent less than last year's $706,475. Most of the decrease appears to result from construction projects, such as tennis courts, having been completed or mostly paid for last year.

Most of these project-type funds came out of a $390,000 federal grant which was partial reimbursement for the district's purchase of the eastern half of the Rob Roy Driving Range, west of Woodland Trails Park on Euclid Avenue.

REVENUE figures for the new budget are incomplete as the district has not been informed of what real estate taxes it will receive from the county.

Within the budget, salary totals remain the same with the exception of a $2,000 increase for the park director and a $5,000 increase for grounds labor. The director's new salary would be $22,000 and the grounds labor salaries would total $35,000.

The budget also includes $2,000 for security guards salaries at the park sites. The park board recently approved the $2,000 sum as an attempt to combat increasing vandalism.

Police link 2 suspects to food store burglary

Two persons were arrested Sunday morning for possession of property believed to be stolen in a burglary from the Convenient Food Store, Mount Prospect, police said.

David W. Daum, 22 of Cary, was charged with possession of stolen property, possession of marijuana and contributing to the delinquency of a minor. A 14-year-old Northbrook girl was charged with possession of stolen property. She was released to the custody of her parents pending Juvenile Court action.

The two were arrested by County Sheriff's police about 5:30 a.m. when they discovered 55 cartons of cigarettes in a car while checking a suspicious auto report at the 2900 block of Briarwood near Arlington Heights, police reported. Police also found a bag containing a substance thought to be marijuana.

In checking the items, police discovered a burglary at the food store, 1780 Algonquin Rd., police said. The store had been ransacked.

Police recovered about $420 worth of property including the cigarettes, a pocket calculator and a large number of swizzle sticks.

State report:

Most crimes by juveniles

by JOE SWICKARD

Juveniles are committing more than half the serious crimes in Arlington Heights, according to a state crime report.

Using the Illinois Uniform Crime Report for April (the most recent reporting month), 53 per cent of those arrested in 12 categories of serious crimes were under 17 years old.

"It doesn't surprise us one bit; but it should shake up some parents out there. Their house gets broken into and they think it's a crime wave, when it's really Johnny from down the block," said Capt. Jack Aldrich of the Arlington Heights police.

LT. PAUL BUCKHOLZ, head of the police juvenile bureau, said the crimes being committed by the youngsters are not confined to petty thefts, vandalism or underage drinking drinking. He said they include assaults, cases of battery, grand theft and burglaries.

The 12 categories examined covered battery, assault, burglaries, thefts, deadly weapons, dealing in stolen property and marijuana offenses. Capt. Aldrich said the month could be considered representative.

The state-issued report lists 132 crimes that were cleared by arrests.

Of those 132 arrests, 70 were juveniles and 62 were adults.

Youngsters' arrests ran ahead of adults in cases of battery, aggravated assault, forced entries, deadly weapons and dealing in stolen property. Grand and petty theft and marijuana arrests were even for the juveniles and adults.

Only in cases of robbery did adults figure in more arrests than youths.

BUCKHOLZ and Aldrich cited a lack of parental control and youngsters' knowledge they are unlikely to be punished as reasons for the amount of juvenile crime.

Aldrich said only four of every thousand criminals go to jail for their crimes.

"If you don't know it, the kids out on the streets certainly do. They can tell exactly what their chances of getting caught and punished are," he said.

He said there is a less than 40 per cent chance of getting arrested for a crime, and between 70 and 80 per cent of those arrested never stand trial. Only one per cent get sent to jail as a result of a trial, Aldrich said.

"We've removed the fear of prosecution — it's something they don't have to worry about and they know it," he said.

He further said the once great social stigma of arrest has lost a great deal of its weight.

"THERE'S NO stigma and no punishment. Then it comes down to what the individual thinks and he can rationalize anyway he wants. Do your own thing," Aldrich said.

Traditional parental controls are no longer being reinforced by churches, schools or entertainment outlets such as movies and television.

"Do the churches talk about heaven or hell anymore? The movies tell them nothing is bad," he said.

He characterized the situation as the "other guy syndrome" where each person expects the other ones to provide the strong guidance.

"Parents tell me all the time that they give their children everything. Well, what do they take away?" he said.

He said taking away privileges from use of the car to revocation of a driver's license can be effective tools.

"They don't ask where Johnny got that money or that 10-speed bike or that stereo. You have to check; a child is not a mature person," he said.

BUCKHOLZ SAID children are being raised by television and are learning their moral codes from private eye and shoot-em-up programs.

"These kids are not stupid. They're smart and they observe. They can see

Lengthen school vacation: parks

The Arlington Heights Park District wants colleges to extend their summer vacations through the end of August so more students will be available to work park district jobs.

Katy Graham, park district vice president, plans to ask the Illinois Assn. of Park Districts to adopt a policy that would support having college summer vacations coincide with the summer vacation periods of high schools.

Arlington Heights and other park districts fall short-handed during August when college students return to school and are unable to continue supervising the swimming pools and other programs, she said.

"If the policy was adopted by the association, it may help to persuade colleges and their governing boards to extend their summer vacations through August," Mrs. Graham said.

THE PARK district, which employs about 110 college students each summer, had to operate the Heritage Park pool on a part-time basis last August when the lifeguards and supervisors returned to school, she said.

"Most of our pool personnel are college-aged kids because they are old enough, they have the Water Safety

Stadium feasibility study to cost $50,000

A feasibility report on a professional football stadium at Arlington Park Race Track could cost the Village of Arlington Heights $50,000, said Alex Cook, vice president of Smith, Barney & Co., investment bankers.

Cook will make a presentation to the village board tonight on the services being offered by Smith, Barney as investment counselors in the negotiations and potential financing of the stadium.

"The upper limit of a feasibility study would be around $50,000," Cook said. "It could be substantially less."

A REPORT on the financing and operation of the stadium would be essential to a municipal revenue-bond issue for the stadium, he said. Revenue bonds would be paid for exclusively from the use of the stadium and would not be tax-supported.

"The Arlington Heights board of trustees is going to have to decide, really, whether it wants to go ahead with the project," Cook said.

"It ought to be very sure in its own mind that it wants to go ahead."

The feasibility report is part of that decision, he said, adding "I think it is a kind of water shed as far as the village is concerned."

LAST MONDAY night, Cook appeared before the village board and reported that tax-supported general-obligation bonds would be an unwise way of paying for the stadium. Revenue bonds are "the only basis on which we (Smith, Barney) are proceeding," he said.

Madison Square Garden Corp., owner of Arlington Park, asked the village to issue general-obligation bonds for the stadium because they carry a lower interest rate and are more easily sold than revenue bonds.

Cook said a stadium feasibility report would not even be required to sell Arlington Heights' general-obligation bonds because they are backed by the full credit and taxing power of the village.

WILLIAM MOORE, Madison Square Garden's attorney, also has said that, with the lower interest rate, general-obligation bonds mean a greater potential revenue surplus for the village.

But Cook Friday discounted Moore's argument saying the fundamental decision was whether the village wanted to become involved in the financing and operation of the stadium.

"Sure there is going to be a surplus (with general-obligation bonds) because of the lower cost of the money. But that is not making any judgment about the functioning of the stadium. The interest rate is lower solely because all the risk is being taken by the citizens of Arlington Heights," he said.

If the Village of Arlington Heights' purpose is to make money, Cook said he could line up businesses from "the Brooklyn Bridge to San Francisco Bay" that would be far more profitable than a stadium.

Today's special village board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

After 25 years, Wing's to close

Wing's Laundry, a fixture in Arlington Heights for a quarter century, soon will close.

Wing Lai, the 77-year-old owner and operator of the laundry, 100 W. Campbell St., will retire in about a month after 25 years in business here, said Clarence A. Hendrickson, a long-time associate of Lai.

Hendrickson rented Lai his first shop in 1950 when he moved to Arlington Heights. The first laundry, 115 N. Evergreen Ave., was razed.

Lai bought the Campbell Street building about 10 years ago and moved the service there, Hendrickson said.

what happens. Where do they learn? The tube is raising a lot of kids," Buckholz said.

Aldrich said juveniles have been responsible for most of the major crimes in the village for some time; and he said he had a "gut feeling" the numbers will be creeping up steadily, if not dramatically.

"It's been going this way since about 1960. That means more and more young people are becoming involved and the young ones are now growing older. Yes, we're thinking about what's going to happen in the future and that's what worries us," he said.

Instructors license and they have the experience that is needed," Mrs. Graham said.

This year the park district is offering a $25 bonus to college students who are willing to work until Labor Day in an effort to solve the problem, she said.

"The situation is hurting the park district and hurting residents too. It's even hurting the college students because now they are getting out of school so early in May that they can't get jobs with the park district until June. So they go a whole month without work," Mrs. Graham said.

Mrs. Graham plans to present the policy to the Illinois Assn. of Park Districts during an August convention in Princeton, Ill.
